Pumpkin pals

JENNIFER PERRY of Monterey obviously has decided which pumpkin she's going to take home for Halloween this year. She found her perfect pumpkin pal at a roadside "pumpkin patch" just off Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley. Somehow it's hard to believe this particular pumpkin will be

City's 70th birthday

Carmel will harken back to its beginnings

By DAVID LELAND

MEMORIES ARE stirring in longtime Carmel residents as the city's 70th birthday party nears. This is a welcome occurrence because a large part of next week's party relies on the past to make us appreciate the present.

Starting the week-long celebration from 9 a.m. to noon on Sunday, Oct. 26, will be the Long Timers Breakfast, which will be held at the Outdoor Forest Theater.

If one is wondering whether they fit into this category they need only examine their attitude.

"Anyone who is confident, lived, loved and became dedicated to Carmel has the right attitude," said Jody Le Towt, a 23-year resident who is directing the breakfast.

Providing the patter and humor for longtimers to eat by will be Tom Brown, a resident since 1940. Brown, who just returned from a vacation in Hawaii, said that while he is not sure what will be discussed, it will be entertaining.

The cost to longtimers is free, but Le Towt said any contributions will be put to good use.

The next day, Oct. 27, will find some of the same longtimers from the previous day sharing their experiences from years past.

The panel discussion is being presented under the auspices of Carmel Heritage, which has been conducting oral histories of many of Carmel's residents.

The format is such that a table will be set up in front of Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center from 4 to 6 p.m. and the panel will present its stories.

The panel consists of Virginia Stanton, Sam Colburn, F. Robert Smith, Connie Palms, Charlotte Townsend and James Hopper. The moderator will be Skip Lloyd.

Townsend said she plans to speak about going to Sunset School, now Sunset Center.

"After going to Sunset School I imagined that all schools looked like that," she said, referring to the style of architecture.

Townsend said she also remembers that there was real slate on the school's roof, which would fall down on the playground. When this happened, the children would pick it up and draw on it with chalk.

Carmel Heritage also has ulterior motives, according to spokesman David Dillworth.

"Some people are too shy to be interviewed (by Carmel Heritage)," he said. "This is a good way to get their story."

Dillworth said after the panel has finished, people from the audience will be asked to share their stories.

MOST CARMEL residents either never get to city hall or if they do only are there for a short stay while taking care of some business.

From 2 to 5 p.m. and again from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 28, members of Carmel's city commissions will lead tours through the maze of offices in city hall and answer questions regarding how the city offices are run.

Bike lane in Carmel

Dear Editor:

Being a regular on a bicycle in Carmel, I've put much thought into the need of a bike lane through Carmel. There are funds available from the county and state for bike trails, and Carmel is the ideal town to put these funds to good use. That's why I wrote the city council a letter requesting action on this matter.

Many children and families in and around Carmel would benefit by a bike trail. Also, there are many visitors to the peninsula who ride through Carmel and with a bike lane, many who drive would see how easy parking a bike or riding in Carmel is. This would help the traffic and parking situation in the long run. After all, everyone knows there are limits to the oil reserves and that is another reason we should plan bike lanes.

Perhaps if we made a bike lane more families would choose Carmel for a Sunday ride and tragedies like the deaths of four in Gilroy recently could be avoided.

The right to live

Dear Editor:

Since my father Milton Mellon is unable to make decisions concerning his medical treatment, I was appointed his conservator by the court, and as his daughter for a lifetime, I believe it is time for my family and me to speak out about his case.

To those of our friends in the community who have expressed concern about his condition, we, as his concerned family, express our thanks. To others who do not know the facts of the case, and have expressed their opinions in letters and phone calls, we would like to provide a word of background.

My father is aged and suffering from deep depression. He has had the finest medical treatment both here and in Southern California where he formerly lived. When his prescribing physician and three psychiatrists told us that Electro-convulsive Therapy (ECT) was the treatment of choice, we resisted the idea. Finally we were told that it was his last hope and then we consented.

Fundamental to my father's condition is that he is unable to make the connection between his illness and the outcome of the treatment that ECT represents. For months he has refused absolutely everything — food, drink, medication, flowers — even family visitors. To say that in his condition he has the ability to judge this treatment is absurd.

All of his life, my father has been a very private person. He has never been in court and it is ironic then that his illness should be tried in court and become a media event.

The second irony, far more serious to all thinking people, is the fact that the therapy prescribed by five doctors is being refuted in court by an attorney who, to our knowledge, has no medical training.

The bottom line is that we want our husband/father back home.

The doctors have prescribed the one remaining remedy and we want him to be able to try it.

The public defender says she is defending my father's right to be left alone and die.

We are fighting for his right to live. Which would you choose?

Symbol of global hopes

Dear Editor:

In her deep concern for all living things, Helen Arnold was a strong supporter of many environmental causes. These also included her commitment to the prevention of nuclear war — in effect, the ultimate environmental cause.

In the spring of 1985, some of us from the Nuclear Weapons Freeze/Monterey County approached Helen with the suggestion that the City of Carmel declare itself a nuclear free zone. She was enthusiastic, and became one of the city council's initial forces in approving that resolution. (A symbolic gesture? Yes — but a symbol of our global hopes.)

A few weeks later, Helen supported our successful efforts toward persuading the Monterey County supervisors to endorse a nuclear weapons freeze resolution. She joined us at the courthouse in Salinas and spoke eloquently on behalf of the resolution. I remember that she said such an action was like a raindrop falling into a lake: the ripples move outward in ever-widening circles.

As we honor the memory of Helen Arnold, let each one of us make a resolution and commitment of our own: to work toward the elimination of the nuclear arms race. For this is surely the paramount issue of our time.

The FOCUS Family-night/Robin Hood production at the Forest Theater Oct. 5, was a smashing success! After expenses FOCUS will have made $1,200. (Money raised is used to enrich educational programs in the CUSD)

Kudos to the GroveMont players for putting on their superb production for the benefit of Carmel schools. Thanks to the Pine Cone and Monterey Peninsula Review for their publicity and to the audience for their enthusiastic participation and support.

Special thanks to all FOCUS board members and to the secretaries at River, Tularcitos and Carmel Middle schools who helped so willingly.

Visual disgrace

Dear Editor:

The sandbags in front of the uninhabited McFarland house on Carmel Beach are a visual disgrace.

An EIR should certainly be done if there is even the remotest possibility that the beach could be further disfigured or even radically changed by the proposed new measures.

Only those who do not use the beach would be foolish enough to fix up this mess without an EIR. Those of us who do walk the beach are confronted daily by the hurried measures employed three years ago.

Let's not make it worse.

Going to the dogs

Dear Editor:

Carmel-by-the-Sea! Such a beautiful place! The view of the ocean is spectacular. Your first impression is to say "How clean and beautiful!" Wrong! Beautiful, yes, clean, no! Don't let that cleanliness fool you. Underneath all that beautiful sand lies dog feces.

EDITOR'S DESK

It goes with the job

WHAT IS the purpose of a member of the city council?

Simply put, as an elected member of a public entity it is to act as a representative of the people who, in good faith, put the councilmember there. That's Civics 101 stuff.

With the position comes certain responsibilities of course, some pleasant, some not so appealing, but it all goes with the job.

Councilmembers are asked to — and must — stand under the bright glare of public scrutiny. Their decisions are studied, debated, criticized and reported in the news media. They will be asked to explain, even defend some of their decisions or actions, sometimes over and over again. The public is entitled to accountability from its elected officials.

The public wants to — and has a right to — know who their councilmember is, what his views are, why he voted (or didn't vote) for a particular issue, and — this may sound slightly funny — what he or she looks like.

The latter may not sound like much on the face of it, but wouldn't you want to know who is representing you? Wouldn't you want to recognize him if he bumped into you on the street, at the grocery store or at a social function? It's important, especially in a small community such as Carmel, to know these things. This type of contact and communication with public officials is as important as contact at city council meetings.

And as far as the news media is concerned council members will be quoted and photographed in (and out of) public meetings, again and again — it all goes with the job.

But what if a councilmember is appointed by his fellow councilmembers? Appointed councilmembers are not in any exalted position. His responsibilities to the public are no different than the rest of the council. In voting for a city council the voters entrust the people they've elected to make decisions for them, ostensibly for the good. That includes selecting a councilmember to fill a vacated seat.

That appointed official may have been selected by his fellow councilmembers, but he, like them, is accountable to the public and in turn is consigned with the public trust.

But if a councilmember can't live with the other things that go along with being on the city council, maybe he shouldn't be there in the first place. To rewrite an old phrase: "If you can't stand the heat in the kitchen, maybe you shouldn't be a chef."

It all goes with the job.

Hearing set for Nov. 4

Hearings on CV Master Plan EIR are delayed

By DAVID LELAND

THE FAMOUS saying by baseball player Yogi Berra comes to mind when referring to the subsequent environmental impact report to the Carmel Valley Master Plan: "It ain't over till it's over."

ON Oct. 16, the county planning commission approved the subsequent final EIR, but forwarded it to the board of supervisors with several letters attached. The presumption being that the board would sort out the "political" issues themselves.

"The planning commission is relatively well-assured that the environmental issues are done," said Lynne Mounday, county staff planner. "The board needs to decide what are the consequences of these issues."

Due to the special meeting conducted by the planning commissioners on Oct. 16, any action by the board has been delayed to its Nov. 4 meeting. Previously, the board had been slated to conduct its first hearing on the subsequent final EIR on Oct. 21.

Mounday said there was not enough time to get each supervisor the newest evidence produced for the subsequent final EIR, therefore action was delayed. But Mounday said there is still hope to have the hearings completed by the end of the year. A goal that has been expressed repeatedly by Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

Both the planning commission and the board of supervisors must hold two public hearings on each phase of the project — the EIR and the master plan. The final hearing by the board on the master plan is scheduled for Dec. 9.

The EIR being passed onto the board to consider is virtually the same document that was viewed by the planning commission, the only changes are stapled to the outside of the document.

The consultant to the EIR hearings, Gloria Root, told the planning commission that it would be cost prohibitive to keep re-binding the document, as changes are bound to be made.

"The final, final EIR will not be bound until the board has completed its hearings," Mounday said.

MELTING BOTH rural quality and developmental growth has been one of the primary concerns of the Monterey County planning commission in its search for an en-

The subsequent final EIR sent to the board for consideration contains all letters received by the staff from Aug. 8 through 16 and a staff recommendation. The recommendation is actually a response to several letters presented at the Oct. 8 hearing by the planning commission, Mounday said.

Meanwhile, the planning commission will conduct its first hearing on the Carmel Valley Master Plan at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 29, in the supervisor's chambers in the courthouse in Salinas.

A THIN line appeared during both of the Oct. 8 and 16 hearings conducted by the planning commission — what was an environmental issue and what was a political consideration.

This resulted in the planners trying to environmental impact report which will satisfy all parties in the Carmel Valley for its master plan.

cover the document's rear flanks to prevent any further delays. Instead of doing anymore wholesale changes in the subsequent final EIR, the planning commission recommended that any major changes take place in the Carmel Valley Master Plan document at a later date.

If the subsequent final EIR had been revised on any major policy level, Mounday said, public hearings would have to be opened up on that issue — a task that did not appeal to any of the planning commissioners or planning staff members.

One way the planning commission implemented this policy was to change one word, "delete" regarding a proposed hotel project in the Carmel Valley. The consultant had recommended that, due to the rural quality stipulations desired by the county, the Williams and Walters property be axed from the master plan.

The commission changed "delete" to "amend"; this gave the power to the board of supervisors regarding property. The board can now leave the land in or out of the master plan.

Both Alan Williams and Anthony Lombardo had complained that the deletion of this property, which is to house Rancho Canada resort complex, was uncalled for and was not in the best wishes of Carmel Valley residents.

The county planning staff also had responses to several other letters received at the Oct. 16 meeting:

- The comment made to geologist John Kingsley, who complained that the draft EIR did not accurately portray faults and slide areas in the Carmel Valley, said the subsequent EIR uses the most accurate information available.

Instead of spending the estimated six months to upgrade the report, the county recommends that "qualified professionals" be engaged by project applicants to conduct on-site studies.

This was further supported by Root, who questioned the validity of extensive county geological reports.

"There is no significant impact to the EIR in not upgrading the fault studies," she said. Root cited one study in which $70,000 and one year of time was spent and the geological team still had not reached a conclusion.

- Also at its Oct. 16 meeting, Planning Commissioner Marit Evans questioned why the consultant had so vehemently opposed clustering of structures in the Carmel Valley.

The response by county planners was answered in part by public health regulations regarding the placement of septic tanks. Its standards dictate that five units clustered on five acres and surrounded by five acres of open land is acceptable. Six units on six acres is not acceptable. Any more units than this would result in advanced sewerage, which the consultant noted becomes viable at about 100 units.

But ultimately, the subsequent EIR recommends that the burden of proof regarding clustering be placed on the applicant to show that clustering would work if they propose it.

"We're not prohibiting," Root said. "Just show me it will work."

Monterey County sets water conservation ordinance after being told that only 0.5 percent remains

By NANCY HILLS

MONTEREY COUNTY is going low.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors approved a water conservation ordinance Oct. 21 after being told that it had only 0.5 percent of its water allocation left uncommitted.

The ordinance is designed to reduce water use in the portions of the county served by California-American Water Co. and within the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. Those areas include Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach, portions of Carmel Highlands, Laguna Seca and Aquajito area.

Increased use by current residents and businesses have used more of the county's allocation than had previously been anticipated. Increased water use by residents and businesses has become a problem for all portions of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. Carmel has reached 99.9 percent of its allocation because of increased water use.

The board of supervisors had been told that there was 1 percent of the allocation left, but revised figures show that only 0.5 percent remains uncommitted.

The ordinance is a part of the county's program to keep its water use within its water allotment from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. The supervisors also approved an emergency ordinance earlier this year that suspended further subdivisions of land to maintain water for the current lots of record. The emergency ordinance does not restrict construction or remodeling. That ordinance will be reviewed again in February.

The county is actually using approximately 90 percent of its 6,501.08 ac. ft. allocation. However, water committed to lots of record and to future projects already approved or coming on line this year will require the remaining 9.5 percent.

The county's situation is different from Carmel, which is actually consuming more than 99 percent of its allocation and is under a self-imposed building moratorium.

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman explained that the county is taking these steps now to avoid "being in Carmel's position where they don't have enough water for even their lots of record."

The approximately 40 uncommitted ac. ft. the county has left will remain uncommitted as part of an ongoing plan to buffer the county against going over its allocation. The object, Strasser Kauffman said, was to build a 2 percent reserve over a couple of years. Once the county has a 1 percent of its total allocation in reserve, 50 percent savings from the conservation ordinance will be allowed to be used and 50 percent will be set aside in reserve.

THE CONSERVATION ordinance, which becomes effective in 30 days, includes provisions for both commercial and residential new construction, landscaping, and retrofitting when a property is sold.

Requirements for new construction include:

- All new construction shall be equipped with ultra-low flush toilets (one and half gallon flush) and shower heads with a maximum flow capacity of two and a half gallons per minute.
- All new construction shall include as part of the exterior landscape development, low-water use or native plants, and low precipitation sprinkler heads, bubblers, drip irrigation systems and timing devices. Provisions are made for a combination of non-native and native vegetation.

- Existing structures with new additions exceeding $1,000 shall be retrofitted with ultra-low flush toilets and low-flow shower heads.

Additionally, all hotels and motels within six months must retrofit with two and a half gallon per minute shower heads.

The shower head retrofit, Strasser Kauffman said, is an inexpensive way to get major water savings.

"The shower head restrictor costs 35 cents or $15 for a new low-flow unit," she said.

The shower uses one-third of the average household's water use, she added, and the expense of installing a low-flow shower is quickly made back in savings on energy and water bills.

The water district gives a $320 rebate on its water connection fees when ultra-low flow toilets are installed, she said, so money can actually be saved by using them.

Existing homes and businesses must be retrofitted to ultra-low flow fixtures at the time of the sale. However, the supervisors did amend the ordinance to exempt change of ownerships from one spouse to another, including a divorce settlement and inheritance, Strasser Kauffman said.

The county building department will return to the board with recommendations on what constitutes hardship cases in a few weeks, she added.

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman says Monterey County approved a water conservation ordinance recently to avoid "being in Carmel's position where they don't have enough water for even their lots of record." Supervisors were told that the county only had 0.5 percent of its water allocation uncommitted after lots of record and future projects are figured in to its 6,501 ac. ft. allocation.

JIM KINNEY will present his one-man show, God's Matador at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 30, in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center as part of the city of Carmel's 70th birthday celebration. Kinney, as Father Junipero Serra, will look at the life of Serra and the founding of early California Missions.

City's birthday party will bring back early days

As in days gone by a city park will once again be filled with the sound of music from 1:15 to 1:45 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 29, when the Carmel Middle School Band performs at Devendorf Park.

Under the direction of Karen King, the youngsters will perform marches, overtures, bossa novas and rock music.

Later that afternoon, funny bones will be tickled when oldtime comedy movies will be presented from 4 to 5 p.m. at Sunset Center Theater.

Films featuring Charlie Chaplin, W.C. Fields, the Marx Brothers and Buster Keaton have been donated by Kit Parker Films of Monterey.

For a taste of California History, Jim Kinney's one-man show, God's Matador, shouldn't be missed at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 30, at Carpenter Hall.

Kinney has been presenting the show, which is a historical presentation about the founding of California missions by Father Junipero Serra, for three years throughout the state.

Kinney said in a recent interview that his intent is not to try and interpret Father Serra's life, but rather give people a sense of the man so that they can make their own decisions.

"I'm an actor, not a scholar. I'm not interested in writing a scholarly book about Father Serra, other people have already done that," Kinney said. "But I'm satisfied my portrayal captures the spirit of the man."

Following Kinney's show El Mariachi Mixtlan, a mariachi group, will perform from 8:30, also in Carpenter Hall.

The week-long birthday celebration culminates on Friday, Oct. 31 beginning at 3:30 p.m. with the 70th Birthday Party "Carmel On Parade."

The parade will begin at Sunset Center, where participants will gather in their costumes at 3 p.m. to find a place in the procession.

From Sunset Center the parade route will wind its way down San Carlos Street to Ocean Avenue and turn left, then it will head down to Monte Verde Street and turn left again. At this point the children will continue straight to Carmel Beach, where they will celebrate the children's Halloween Party. The adults will proceed back to Sunset Center for the city's birthday party, which will be held in Carpenter Hall from 4 to 6 p.m.

The party is only open to Carmel residents and business people and will provide a time for refreshments, socializing and the official cutting of the 70th birthday cake by Mayor Clint Eastwood.

Post office to celebrate with special cancellation

By DAVID LELAND

EVEN THE Carmel Post Office is getting into the spirit of the city's 70th birthday party celebration. A special cancellation, replete with a drawing by a noted cartoonist, will go on sale for one day Friday, Oct. 31, at the post office located at Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

The idea is the brainchild of Jack Holt, Carmel postmaster, who two weeks ago at a Carmel Business Association meeting decided to get the post office involved.

"I thought it was a good way for the post office to commemorate the birthday party," he said.

Holt first contacted cartoonist Eldon Dedini to come up with a sketch. Dedini, who has been published in the New Yorker, Esquire and Playboy magazines, agreed to a drawing at no charge. He came up with a picture of a jolly friar sitting on a burro in front of the Carmel Mission Basilica. The friar's arms are held open in a welcoming gesture.

Currently Holt is having 2,000 of the commemorative cancellations printed. He added that because of the limited number these will become collectors' items.

The cancellations will be on sale for a $1.50 each from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Oct. 31 at the Carmel Post Office. They will also be sold from 4 p.m. at a booth in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center, where the city is celebrating its 70th birthday party.

Alternatives to new dam subject of water workshop

By NANCY HILLS

THE PROPOSED San Clemente Dam, water supply alternatives to the dam and the viability of combined projects are the subjects of a workshop by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board next week.

The workshop will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 29 in Seaside City Council Chambers. The public is invited to attend.

The board will review the feasibility of 17 alternative projects by testing them against three criteria:

- Ability to meet the water demand to the year 2020. The project must meet the minimum standards set forth by the water board. Current demand projections dictate that such a project must be able to yield approximately 18,600 ac. ft. annually even in the worst drought conditions. According to growth projections, that would be a reduction of available water of 25 percent of the demand during a dry year. Water use is higher during a dry year.

During the 1976-1977 drought, the system production was reduced by 40 percent.

The demand projections are based on information provided by peninsula planning departments to district consultants and projected intensification of current water use due to home remodeling and water use habits. Future demand is also based on a 15 percent savings in water use due to conservation. Much of the savings is based on changes in water fixtures in the home and in businesses.

- Annual cost for maintaining the project. The district has set a cap of $9.2 million a year for operation cost on any water supply project. That would add $80 per year to the average water bill.

- Cost per acre feet. The proposed San Clemente Dam project is projected to cost about $1,500 per acre feet.

This workshop is the second in a series to sift through alternatives to the dam for its environmental impact report. The first workshop narrowed the field down to 17 alternatives, including reclamation, greater use of the Seaside and/or Carmel Valley aquifers, conservation and other dam sites.

A third screening takes place later in the year, and will compare alternatives that survive the second screening, which involves more detailed criteria.

The first screening, earlier this year, deleted alternatives due to jurisdictional constraints, meaning a permit would be very difficult to obtain; technical constraints, for projects that have obvious geotechnical problems; timing constraints, for projects that would take too long to complete; and economic constraints, for projects that would exceed a reasonable cost.

Carmel Youth Council

combing the city to help with donations of materials, services and funds, everything from carpentry and paint to plants and stereo equipment. "We can't stress how much we do need the money and services now and to call our hotline at 373-2318," said Andrew, a student at Robert Louis Stevenson. The big kick-off event will be a community garden party slated for Sunday, Nov. 16, said Susan Grannis, adult volunteer. Information, besides the hotline, can also be found by calling Tom Faia at 624-1444. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Highway 68 task force shifts into second gear

By DAVID LELAND

MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS for the Holman Highway moved one step closer this week as the Holman Highway Task Force received bids from three companies interested in preparing environmental information and preliminary engineering as the project enters Phase II.

Phase I of the project dealt with determining which areas of the busy highway could be altered to accommodate more cars. The proposed improvements include a climbing lane on the straightaway section from Pacific Grove going south and construction of a four-lane section of the highway from Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula to Highway 1.

Currently, construction has already begun on an additional lane on the hospital side of the highway. This is one of the conditions of the use permit received by the Pebble Beach Co. to begin construction of the Spanish Bay project, a 270-room hotel-resort complex which has a completion date of fall 1987.

The completion of the Spanish Bay project is expected to load an additional 100 car trips each day on Highway 68, according to Pebble Beach representative Candy Ingram.

While the additional lane construction in front of the hospital is slated to be completed by next year, the $1.5 million four-lane addition to the highway will "hopefully" be done by 1988, according to Susan Whitman, task force chairman.

In order to fund the major construction, the task force has begun meeting with state officials as well as attempting to create a partnership between private firms, local and state agencies and the U. S. Army to fund the project.

Recently, agencies participating in the task force were requested to donate $10,000 for financial commitment to Phase II of the program.

While the majority of the agencies have complied, at its Oct. 7 meeting the Carmel City Council deferred any action on the matter until it could hear a report from its task force representative, Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo, on Nov. 4.

cilmember Ruth Vreeland, Pacific Grove City Councilmember Susan Whitman, Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas and Nick Papadakis of AMBAG. The task force now numbers 17 members.

While Doug Schmitz, city administrator, said the city did not have enough information to act on the request, the delay has caught Laiolo between a rock and a hard place.

At its Oct. 16 meeting, each member of the task force handed in an evaluation of each prospective contractor — Laiolo demurred.

"I am not in a position to vote," she said, "and I didn't hand in an evaluation. I'm there as an observer."

Whitman responded to Carmel's delay of a financial contribution in a stoic manner.

"The mayor (of Carmel) said this is a worthwhile project," she said. But she is in no way 100 percent certain of the contribution.

"Pacific Grove is committed," said Whitman, who is also a councilwoman in that city. "We could raise the money elsewhere. We have always realized we might not get it."

While Whitman said Carmel will get to have a voice in the evaluation if they chip in financially, the idea of the city not contributing hits a raw nerve.

"Carmel has more money than Pacific Grove to play with," she said.

In addition to the task force's recommended improvements on Holman Highway, negotiations have also been conducted between the county and the Pebble Beach Co. regarding the status of a fifth gate for access to the Spanish Bay project.

Under current conditions of the building permit, the Pebble Beach Co. is required to build a gate at Haul Road off a straight stretch of Highway 68 near the western edge of the Presidio of Monterey.

The new gate would allow cars direct access to Spanish Bay. There is, however, a question of what to do with the intersection there, whether to signalize it or utilize an overpass-underpass (or interchange) configuration.

The most recent solution to the problem is to postpone any action until two years after the hotel is open so traffic patterns can be observed, according to Sam Karas, Fourth District supervisor. While this proposal is still in the preliminary stages, the task force has indicated its support of the idea pending a further study.

JUST AS there are three contractors bidding to do the work on Highway 68, there are also three different ways the engineers have to remedy the traffic problems on one of the main arteries on the peninsula.

At its Oct. 16 meeting each firm was given 40 minutes to be interviewed. The first 20 minutes was used by the firm to give a brief overview of its proposal, with the second 20 minutes being utilized with questions presented from the task force.

After each interview the presentation was rated and turned in for compilation. The final rating will be tabulated at the next meeting of the task force, to be held at 3 p.m. Monday, Oct. 27, at Pacific Grove City Hall.

CH2M Hill, a San Jose-based engineering firm, proposed an approach process which would eliminate the need to prepare a lengthy environmental impact statement. With this approach, it would carefully follow the requirements detailed in the Caltrans Environmental Handbook.

CH2M Hill, in addition to roadway widening, proposed a replacement of the Scenic Drive Overcrossing Bridge.

Its timetable presented to the task force calls for an immediate preparation of a project report and environmental assessment. The $69,900 report would be completed by the end of May next year.

Creegan and D'Angelo, who maintain offices in Monterey, take a different approach to the bridge spanning Highway 68. They say that possible removal of the structure would be necessary or a modification of the highway alignment.

A detailed environmental impact report would be prepared by this firm, which would be submitted for public review.

The EIR would examine geology, traffic, noise and visual aesthetic resources among other mitigation factors.

The timeframe for the $73,400 project, which would begin immediately, has a completion date of mid-July, 1987.

Duncan and Jones, a Berkeley-based planning consultant, said that any widening of Highway 68 would require the replacement of the bridge. If its bid is accepted, two designs of a bridge, together with the estimated cost would be presented to the task force.

For $54,000, Duncan and Jones would give the task force an EIR and project report in mid-January.

A new face

THE RETURN of each high school year always brings about new things that make the year unique from all the previous ones. Perhaps a few retiring teachers are replaced, maybe a new athletic facility is constructed, or, on rare occasions, a stranger is brought in to fill the position of school principal. Such is the case with Carmel High School.

The rumors of a new principal began to circulate near the closing of the last school year. "Who is Marie Ishida?" we all wondered. Well, one month of the 1986-87 school year has passed and no one has to ask that question anymore.

Former assistant principal of Santa Cruz High, Ishida has a very open and concerned approach to running Carmel High. Wasting no time in displaying her philosophy of student-faculty interaction, she introduced herself to each class separately during the second week in September. She told students that the rumors she had heard that Carmel High was a warm, friendly, as well as highly academic school, were true. After sitting in on a few classes she is very impressed by the staff's commitment to teaching.

Ishida also made it known that there are some areas which need a little touching up. She suggests more plants and some colorful paint to liven up the drab beige tones of the buildings.

Another way in which Ishida has tried to learn the concerns of the students is to hold open forums during lunch. Anyone who feels the need to ask a question or present an idea for the betterment of the school may see her personally.

The main issue which evolved from the first forum was the problem of smokers in the bathrooms. Ishida's reaction, "We have to live together harmoniously, and the only way to do so is to also hear input from the smokers." She is working on a solution with both the smokers and non-smokers.

Ishida feels she has been well received. She is very pleased with the school's counseling staff. She admits, "Being the new kid in town isn't always easy, and the counselors' support has been absolutely outstanding."

Council, employees come out against Prop. 61

By DAVID LELAND

AT ITS Oct. 7 meeting the Carmel City Council agreed with the city's General Employees Association: Proposition 61 is not only bad for Carmel but it's bad for the state.

By unanimously adopting a resolution opposing the so-called "California Fair Pay Initiative," Carmel will go on record with the Californians For Quality Government "No" On Proposition 61 and its move to derail the controversial measure on the November ballot.

If approved, Proposition 61 would cap city salaries of elected and appointed officials while disallowing employees to accrue sick time or vacation days unused within a 12-month period.

Recently, Doug Schmitz, city administrator, told The Pine Cone that the immediate cost to Carmel would be more than $500,000 to buy out its employees accumulated time off and sick leave.

The bill also puts a cap on how much government agencies can spend on private contractors. A maximum of $75 an hour could be spent by the city to hire outside contractors if the bill becomes law.

The initiative, sponsored by tax crusader Paul Gann, whose Proposition 13 spending cuts still leave a bitter taste in the mouths of city officials, would actually increase government spending, according to the California Library Association.

"The initiative severely damages California's competitive position in retaining and attracting top talent to public service positions," said Linda Crowe, CLA legislative coordinator.

Crowe said the $64,000 annual salary limits set by the initiative are also in conflict with the marketplace in which the state competes for medical, professional and managerial skills.

Such salary limitations would, for example, freeze the salaries of 1,290 supreme, appellate, superior and municipal court judges. Crowe doubts that the state's current judges would wish to stay on the bench for this salary.

Also, Crowe disputes the "Constitutional officers" salaries which are specified at $52,000 in the bill. For some employees this would be a $10,000 increase, but for the state Board of Equalization members this would mark an almost $27,000 decrease.

The state business community agrees with Crowe and her assessment of Proposition 61.

"This most ill-conceived measure would cost Californians far more than it might ever save," said Kirk West, president of the California Chamber of Commerce. "It is a cure worse than the disease."

West said that while his organization has supported prior Gann initiatives, on Proposition 61 they are opposed for a variety of reasons. Among these are:

- According to a non-partisan analyst, it could cost the state's taxpayers $7 billion if governments must "buy out" vacation and sick leave time. About 10,000 employees would be affected immediately by passage of the proposition.

- The proposition's cap on compensation will harm schools. West illustrates this by citing that top teaching talent, including Nobel laureate professors, would be hired away by private institutions if there is a cap put on state teacher's salaries.

- The bill's approach to vacation and sick leave time would encourage absenteeism. Employees too busy to take vacation or who suffer serious illnesses would be out of luck.

- Proposition 61's "obscure" language would result in years of drawn-out litigations in state court. Which would result in an even greater loss to the taxpayer.

ched a campaign to train as many people as possible in CPR techniques.

These classes will teach new standards in CPR techniques, as well as choking rescue techniques — the famed Heimlich maneuver — according to Phil Gray, chapter publicity chairman.

The classes, including demonstrations and lectures, require about four hours to complete. Trained Red Cross CPR instructors will conduct the courses.

Those completing the CPR course will be awarded with Red Cross certificates. Class size, however, is limited. For more information, or to register, call 624-6921.

Trustees want to avoid PGUSD's money problems

By DAVID LELAND

SCHOOL BOARD officials this week attempted to alleviate any fears or concerns expressed by worried parents regarding the Carmel Unified School District's financial solvency.

At the CUSD board meeting Tuesday night, the problems of the Pacific Grove Unified School District weighed heavy on members of the school board.

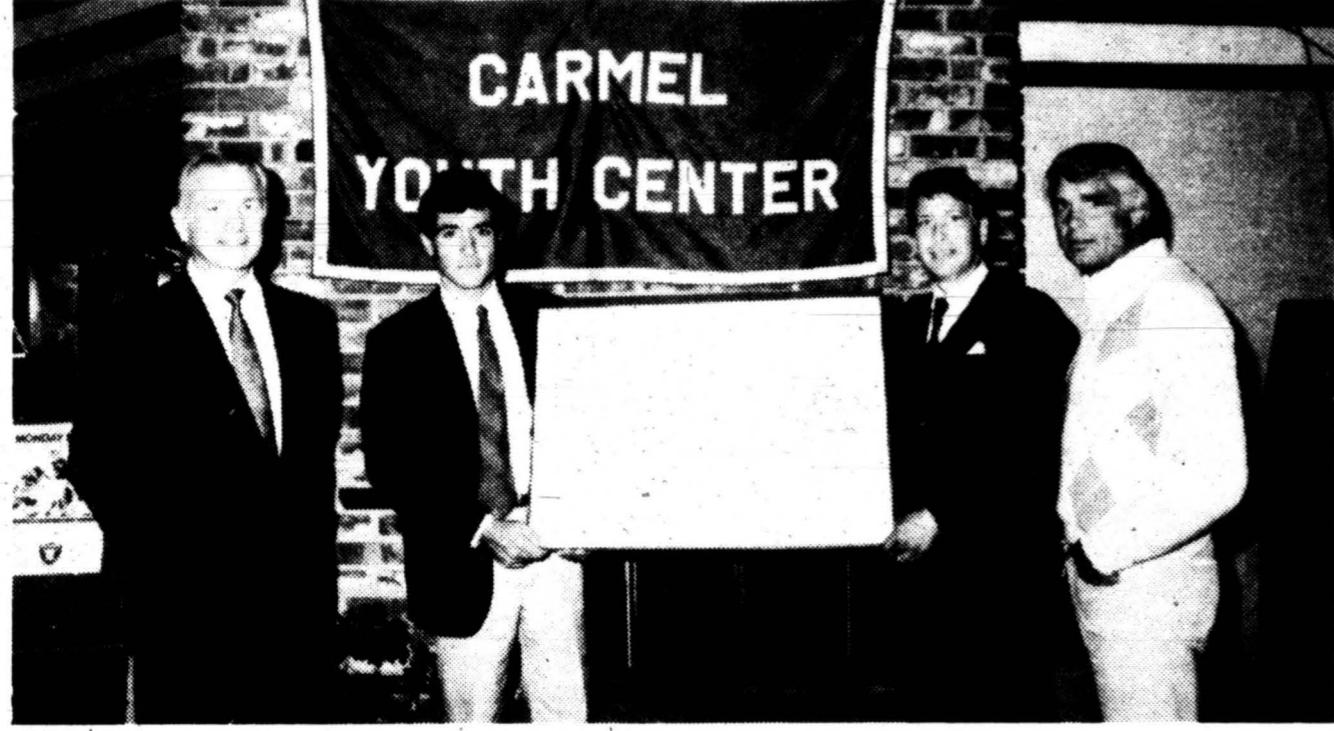

Last week a grand jury criticized the handling of district funds by former Pacific Grove school district administrators.

During the fiscal year 1982-83, the grand jury said, the district overspent its income and ended the year with a deficit fund balance of more than $1 million. In 1984, the district had to borrow $1.8 million from the state to prevent default.

The Pacific Grove school board has 90 days to reply to the grand jury statement, which was issued Oct. 10.

Beginning the Oct. 21 CUSD meeting, school board member Hilton Bialek said the problems of Pacific Grove represent a "nightmare" to a school board.

Can you tell me where...?

IF YOU'VE found maps of Carmel-by-the-Sea sorely lacking in some areas (such as locations of public restrooms) then Yair Orr and Charles LeGros of Pacific Grove (holding map) think they have the solution: "The first completely annotated map of Carmel," featuring color coding, business locator index system, "foolproof" directory and all public amenities (from restroom to public telephone locations). The map, 20,000 copies on the first run, will be out before Christmas and 6 percent of the proceeds will go to the Carmel Youth Center, $2,400 by Christmas and an additional $12,000 by mid-summer, estimates LeGros. Accepting the first installment of $100 was Bob Giraud of Monterey Savings (far left) and Merv Sutton of Carmel Youth Center board of directors. (Mac McDonald photo.)

"We (the board) are very concerned about fiscal responsibility," he said, "and will do whatever we can so that this (the problems of Pacific Grove) doesn't happen."

But Bob Infelise, CUSD superintendent, said that the district has several methods of operation which are intended to prevent discrepancies in fiscal matters.

The most recent example of this came from a "reasonably unbiased" business consultant hired by the district to review its money matters, Infelise said.

"He found we (CUSD) did have a business operation that was reasonably sound," Infelise said.

Infelise said most of a school district's fiscal problems come from errors in the administrator's judgment where the district is counting on money to come in and then they don't get it.

"Sometimes you can make a judgment on your income and take a gamble," he said. "Then the money is not there."

CHALK MARKS

Better writing: New goal at CVHS

IT IS customary for the principal to write something for the "Chalk Marks" column concerning activities and programs at his or her school during the new year. I depart from this traditional pattern in order to share some typical examples of student writing. This is done to illustrate what is being emphasized this year at Carmel Valley High School: critical thinking and creative writing skills.

One focus of our energies this year is to improve student writing. The following samples represent the first results of student work developed under the direction of Mrs. Jeanne Fletcher. (Blake Fuessenich, principal CVHS)

Wrong Impression

By TINA MORGAN

Most parents seem to think that Carmel Valley High School is for dropouts, failures, or teenagers taking drugs. This is where you adults are wrong.

Carmel Valley High School offers students independence, individualized help, and special classes. In order for students to be successful at Carmel Valley High School, they have to be independent. Students aren't pushed, but they are required to accumulate 15 hours and 2½ credits a week.

Students shall graduate once they have completed all their credits and subject requirements, which happen to be more than at Carmel High School.

Individual help is also one of the definite advantages of Carmel Valley High School. If you don't understand a certain thing, the teachers will sit down and explain what you don't understand, down to the last detail. They will work with you until you understand what you did wrong.

Carmel Valley High School has special classes, such as computer science (which is required to graduate), first aid, CPR, survival, psychology, philosophy, and others, such as career education.

Carmel Valley High School has definitely made me, and many others, realize what life is all about and that you have to work at what you want.

Looking at the first star,
I make a wish.

Touching you for the first time,

I could feel you inside me
From the very start.
I can sense your presence around me
As I melt from the warmth
Of your heart.

The Horses By TIM WILSON

As free as the horses run, I cry for them. As I sit I wonder, do they run for fear of what's behind? Or do they run for the love of what's ahead? Calmly I stand and lean against the fence, talking a deep breath and noticing the sweet honeysuckle scent in the air. I wipe my eyes for the fear of feeling foolish to the approaching strangers. Greeting them, I pass and walk along to where now the horses restfully graze. A feeling of peace is now aroused in me. Peace to them, and peace with myself.

Tablescapes offers tabletop theater

GREAT HOSTS and hostesses showed great virtuosity last weekend when they shared tabletop drama to benefit Friends of Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. This special event, Tablescapes, was created by and coordinated by Mrs. F. Lee Early, Jr. Noting that Hospice and hospitality have the same common Latin root germinated the idea for Tablescapes — a word she copyrighted for the first event three years ago.

Created by interior designers, celebrity hosts, and businesses, the table tableaux to inspire the dining experience included a variety of themes: Chinese, Japanese, Victorian, country, sheer elegance, thoroughly modern, outright fun and a few unveilings.

Lady Harriet Star's modern table setting was a world premiere of the handcrafted pottery she created for this event. Colors were dramatic dark red, black and white with star-shaped placecards for sparklers such as Nancy and Ronnie. The table was metal scaffolding and the impressive backdrop was the first showing of Lord Barclay Ferguson's triptych Moss Landing Power Plant.

Martha Mood's toucan art was the inspiration for new dinnerware by Hermes of Paris in its first showing in this country. Remember you saw it in Monterey before posh Beverly Hills or big ole' San Fran were given so much as a passing glimpse. Mrs. Lester Henderson did "Jungle Dining" for the Martha Mood tapestry of animals wallhanging.

This third annual tablescapes was dedicated to the memory of Nelle Curry ASID, and to honor her Mrs. Early arranged a room with Fortuny fabric gracing a table set with Dammouse porcelain.

In the sheer elegance category were: Mrs. Taher Obaid's super blue and white setting, Keller and Scott's fall table, and Carmel hostess Ruth Fletcher's charmingly flowery "1932 Garden Party" with draped cart, garden bench, greenery and a bottle of 1932 wine. "Breakfast in Bed" by Jerry Welling; Neiman Marcus' "Jardin Chinois" with red and green arch, Sheraton's "A Hunting Lodge at Christmas" with giant brass deer under a tall table tree with tiny lights.

Dripping with elegance was Richard Menn's setting of Czar Nicholas I dinnerware commissioned for his yacht Queen Victoria and silver by the famed Carl Peter Faberge.

Country flair was shown by Plantation Pedlar's "Americana", Pierre Coutou's authentic "La Provence Table" complete with fougasse (lacy bread); Meridith Camp's "Monterey Country Miniature"; and T. Scott Moore's striking seashore table "An Afternoon at Yankee Point."

Festival of Trees, M.P. Museum of Art, presented "Christmas Dinner" and "Little Women at Tea" (Victorian dolls) with three decorated trees for background decor. Vel Garrity and Doug Holmes did a super "Out of Africa" room with large Nigerian masks on poles, pith helmets, safari jackets, a vintage record player, zebra and leopard skins.

Fun tables were: the seasonally apropos "Pumpkin Table" by Virginia Stanton; an intimate holiday table for two (Mr. and Mrs. Claus) by Tom and Camilla May with an adjoining table tree, gifts, and Santa's pack.

ARMISTICE DAY PLAN FORMULATED

Carmel is to have a glorious celebration of Armistice Day, Friday, November 11th.

A committee of citizens, among them, Dr. Alfred Burton, Argyll Campbell, Winsor Josselyn, W.L. Overstreet, Dr. H.W. Fenner, Lewis Josselyn, Austin James, C.S. Green and Dr. C. A. McCollom, met at the City Hall last Saturday afternoon to formulate plans for an impressive program.

The principal event will be the laying of the corner-stone of the memorial to be erected in honor of the men and women of Carmel Precinct, who were enlisted in the country's service during the World War.

It is proposed that the structure be erected on Ocean Avenue where now stands the drinking trough. The rock of which the memorial is to be built has been donated by Harvey A. Russell, and will be constructed in accordance with drawings and plans prepared by C. Sumner Greene.

TREE SCULPTOR FOR CARMEL PLANNED

Carmel City Council voted Wednesday evening to hire a man, under the street department, to be charged with the proper trimming of trees on city property; to do pruning which has long been neglected due to the fear that it might be done wrong. The term, "tree sculptor," objected to by some members of the council as "sounding expensive," like "sanitary engineer" when you mean plumber, nevertheless expresses the ideal of what the council wants; a man who understands that each tree has a personality, and will treat it accordingly; not just whacking off limbs that somebody thinks are in the way.

PHOTOGRAPHER ANSEL ADAMS HERE FOR ONE-MAN SHOW,

As a noisy concrete mixer dumped its first batch of wet, gray cement into the foundation forms of his new home in the Carmel Highlands, Ansel Adams looked on and said, "By next April, you'll find me a permanent resident here and not just another occasional visitor."

Adams, world-famous photographer whose pictures have been published in more books and magazines than he can remember and who has the appearance of a six-foot tall pixie, has long planned to move to the peninsula. Actual work on the construction of his new home this week brings the time near when the hope becomes an actuality.

Concurrently, the new headquarters of the American Federation of Arts on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh opened its doors with an impressive one-man show of the work of Ansel Adams in one of the most stunning exhibitions of the photographic art ever to be shown in California.

visors at its last meeting created a concerned and somewhat gloomy atmosphere at the Harrison Memorial Library board meeting last Thursday.

The question seemed to be, has the county gone beyond the ad hoc library committee report?

By taking the action of hiring an architect "to conceptualize a permanent facility in the Carmel unincorporated area" and authorizing an investigation for a suitable site for such a facility, the Carmel board felt the county had taken the library's future into its own hands.

SERVICE CENTER PROPOSED EAST OF CV VILLAGE

The Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee will hold a "town meeting" at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 27 at the Carmel Valley Youth Center on a proposed service center just east of Carmel Valley Village.

Developers of the project presented their plan to the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association board of directors last week, where some questions about noise and traffic safety were raised.

The proposed Valley Service Center would be a 30,000 square foot commercial development at 55 E. Carmel Valley Road covering five acres of a 7.5 acre parcel.

Space would be leased to contractors, tradesmen and service providers, with the emphasis on those businesses already in operation in the Valley.

A TASTE OF MONTEREY GOLD

The Symphony Guild is an innovative fund-raising arm for the Monterey County Symphony. President Eugenia R. Andrew and Mrs. Harland O. Hall chairperson of "A Taste of Monterey Gold" arranged a tastefully fine festive evening of superior dimensional substance. The guild achieves merit and excellence with each new event.

The idea this time was to sample gold medal winners of Monterey County wineries along with complementary foods with the opportunity to purchase unique cases of these 12 assembled wines. With half the (fair market) price tax-deductible (to benefit the symphony) your wine cellar holds

In the Grand Ballroom of the Sheraton Monterey 12 tables dispensed delicious food from beautifully displayed sections which combined well with the wines at adjoining tables.

"It is actually Monterey Vineyards that is sponsoring this evening for the Symphony Guild," stated Mrs. Andrews when she spoke briefly. "This could not have been accomplished without the very classy Gary Ibsen." Mr. Ibsen drew tickets for door prize winners and introduced Cary Gott, vp and winemaker of Monterey Vineyard.

Families needed for students

The Youth Exchange Service (YES) is presently seeking families interested in having an intercultural experience by hosting a foreign exchange student. Students come from Europe, Asia and Latin America.

These students go through a rigid process of selection and, therefore, are bright, mature, and most of all, very enthusiastic to become the best ambassadors to the United States possible by sharing their culture with their host family and friends.

Our next group of students is due to arrive in December 1986/January 1987 and are to stay until the end of the school year. The host family's responsibility is to provide room, board and love. In return, the student is expected to try and assimilate to the U.S. lifestyle and to become a part of the family.

Students have excellent medical insurance and bring their own spending money. The host family may also claim a $50 deduction for each month that they host.

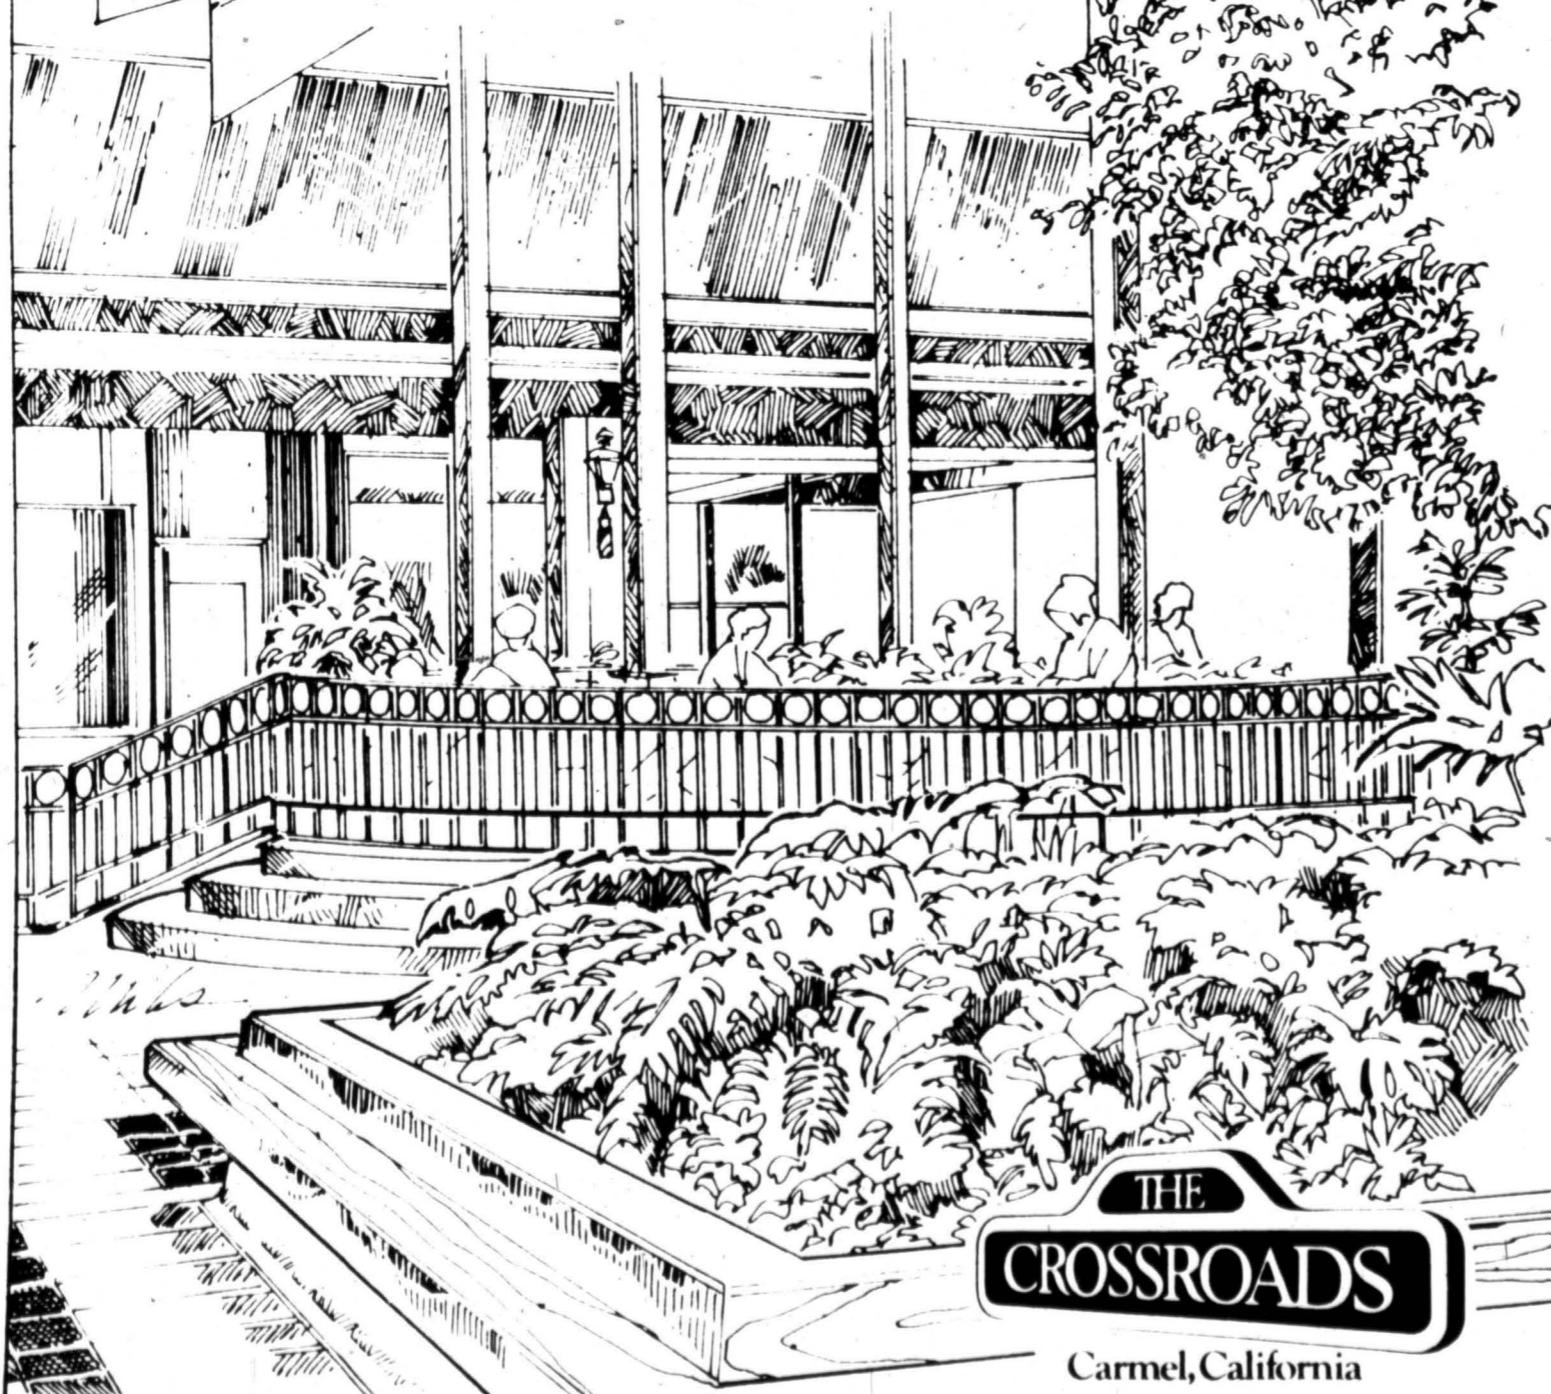

If you are interested in having a rewarding experience and would like more information, please contact: Youth Exchange Service (YES), World Trade Center Building, 350 S. Figueroa St., No. 257-P, Los Angeles, CA 90071, phone: 1-800-533-0656.

His emphasis was on George Sterling but he also referred to James Hopper, Mary Austin, Jack London and Sinclair Lewis.

Pacific Bell can provide personalized phone numbers

Pacific Bell residential and business customers who want to add a personal touch to their home or business phone numbers by replacing numbers with identifying letters, or by combining letters and numbers to fit their tastes, will now be assisted by the company in doing so.

The state Public Utilities Commission (PUC) authorized Pacific Bell to provide personalized telephone number service to customers who ask for it.

Customers who are provided personalized numbers can attach letters or a combination of letters and numbers of their choice to prefixes assigned them by Pacific Bell. Pacific Bell will assign prefixes to customers based on where they live.

For example, the utility may assign a customer who requests a personalized number the prefix 777. The customer, who might be a rock and roll enthusiast, may choose to complete his or her number with the word "rock." Thus: 777-ROCK.

Or, the customer may want to combine letters and numbers. For example: "672-N4N4." The new telephone number service, obviously designed for new residential and business customers, or for those who move into Pacific Bell's service territory and change telephone numbers, will be priced as follows:

One-time charge, residential, $10; business, $38. Monthly charge, residential, $1.50; business, $3.50.

The service is costly because personnel are needed to fill requests for specific numbers. It was once provided free of charge. But now, following the breakup of the Bell system, all such services must pay their own way.

one challenger, has sworn Immortal's Revenge. Jory has taken home the first $10 cash prize money in our video wars competition.

Our Monday Night Football program continued with former Oakland and LA Raider All-Pro standout Dave Dalby making the scene. It was a great evening and we expect to see you all back here on Nov. 3 for the next player visit. Special thanks to Mike Gilbert who makes the program possible and The Pine Cone for sponsoring it. Birthdays is the theme of the next visit so everyone bring your party hats!

In cooperation with the city's 70th birthday celebrations the youth center is sponsoring a free Halloween Eve party/dance.

This dance will be for sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade students in the school district.

All middle school students are invited to attend. The dance is from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Oct. 31. Prizes will be given for the Most Traditional, Most Original and Most Scary costumes. However, costumes are optional for the dance. The Carmel Middle School Parent Faculty Club will chaperone the dance and middle school dance rules will be observed. The youth center will be closed that night to all high school students.

We still offer the best hot dog on the planet and serve a burger for a buck. All interested high school students who would like to help the city's 70th birthday celebration/contact chairman Vince Hake at 624-3285 or capture him at school.

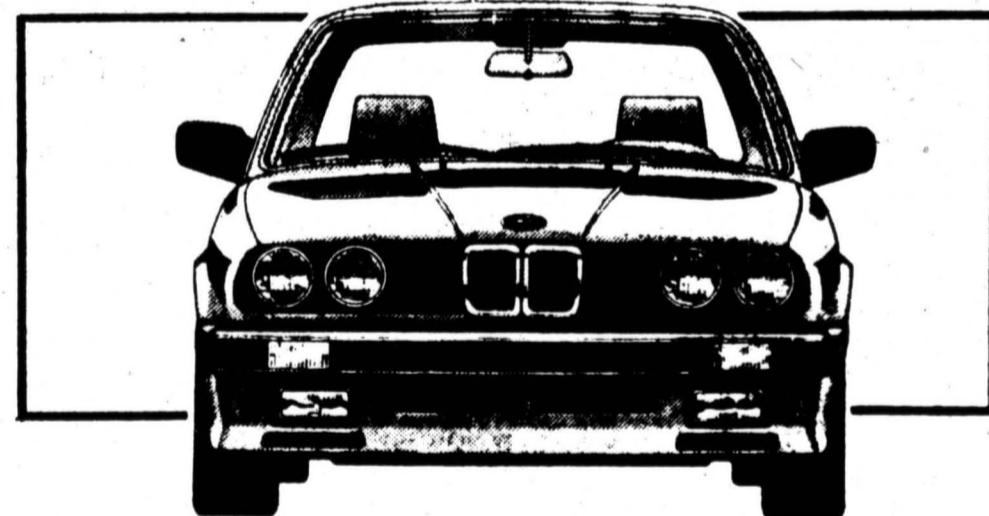

The Carmel Homecoming Day Parade is tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. I want to see you all on Ocean Avenue. Finally major congratulations to the Carmel varsity football team on the victory over Monterey. Great offense and brilliant defense, Rage on Padres!

CHAMBER ELECTS NEW BOARD MEMBERS

The Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce has announced the election of three new peninsula business leaders to join the 1987 Board of Directors. Paul Ratchford (The Lodge at Pebble Beach), Jim Jennifer (Community Hospital), and Tom Hendricks (Monterey Culinary Insurance and Pension Fund) will fill the positions of three retiring members.

A newcomer to the Monterey Peninsula, Ratchford has served as General Manager of The Lodge at Pebble Beach since June 1986. A native of Savannah, Ga., Ratchford has worked in management capacities with Ritz-Carlton Hotels and Hyatt Hotels. His expertise in the hospitality industry and fresh outlook on peninsula business will be an asset to the new board.

Returning to the chamber board for a second time is Jennifer, vice president/Administration of Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. Jennifer has also served as administrator of Orthopaedic Hospital in Los Angeles.

Hendricks serves as administrator of the Monterey Culinary Insurance Fund and the Monterey Culinary Pension Fund. Prior to his joining the funds in 1979, Hendricks served as Assistant Chief of Staff for the 7th Infantry Division at Fort Ord. He has been active on the chamber's Military Affairs Committee since that time.

Incumbent directors who were elected to serve a second term with the chamber are Bob Bussinger (Ventana Inn), Bert Cutino (Sardine Factory), McKenzie Moss (Monterey County Bank) and Jack Paquin (Paquin Construction). Along with the three new members these directors round out the seven newly elected members for the 1987 term.

Retiring board members include Phil Lombardi (Hyatt Regency), Neal Owens (Coastline Business Forms) and Ben Tucker (KMST Television).

Officers for the 1987 term will be elected at the chamber's November board meeting.

The wine will be compliments of Chateau Julien, the bread and cheese compliments of The Mediterranean Market. Halloween Safety

THE ARRIVAL of Halloween indicates the start of the holiday season, with an array of festivities that make this a special time of year. Taking certain safety precautions will help make this Halloween a happy one for ghosts, goblins and monsters of all ages.

No Halloween is complete without the traditional jack o'lantern. If you choose to light your jack o'lantern, use a little common sense in doing so. Don't place the pumpkin near anything flammable, and make sure it is secure in such a way that it will not tip over. If you use a plastic jack o'lantern, do not use an open flame to light it (candle, lantern). Light it with a small battery powered lantern or lamp.

When shopping for costumes for your children, be sure that the material is flame resistant and that the child can clearly see out of the mask. Also, make sure that the costume reflects light. If you make your child's costume be sure he or she can comfortably and safely move about in it, and can clearly see out of it.

If your children go trick-or-treating without you, make sure that they are supervised and that they all carry flashlights. It is best that they stay in familiar surroundings and only go to the houses of people they know well.

Don't allow your children to eat any of their treats until you have had a chance to inspect the food, especially any fruit and homemade items. Check the packaging of commercially made treats for any signs of tampering (loose wrapping, tears, pinholes), and throw out anything that you suspect may have been tampered with.

Young children are not the only ones who celebrate Halloween. Teenagers and adults like to take part also, and have every right to, whether it is by partying, giving away treats or just "messing around with the gang."

However, all too often the children are the ones who suffer fear and injuries from the inconsideration of older, more "mature" individuals. All that is really necessary to prevent these injuries is a little courtesy and common sense, which for some is a lot to ask. Be a little more careful when driving on Halloween, and for those of you out "messing around," leave the little ones alone.

Halloween night is a time of celebration for the young and young at heart, and should be enjoyed by all who wish to be involved. However, it is not to be enjoyed by certain people at the expense of others, especially children.

Firewood available to public

The Public Use Firewood Program on the Monterey Ranger District of the Los Padres National Forest will begin Oct. 3, and close Dec. 21, unless wet weather requires earlier termination.

Permits are required and are currently being sold on a first-come, first-serve basis. Firewood may be purchased at $10 per cord with a minimum purchase of two cords and a maximum purchase of five cords. The cutting area is located on the South Coast Ridge Road, about 25 miles west of Jolon.

For information and applications, contact the USDA — Forest Service, 406 South Mildred Ave., King City, CA 93930. Telephone number is 385-5434.

Crisis center holds training for volunteers

In Monterey County twice the national average of sexual assaults per capita are reported.

The Monterey Rape Crisis Center will conduct a 40-hour training for crisis line volunteers starting Nov. 15.

Individuals interested in receiving the training and volunteering eight hours per week should contact Katherine Lingan, client services coordinator, at 373-3955.

The training will include sessions on crisis intervention, rape, sexual assault laws and legislative procedures, as well as dealing with anger and abuse. The volunteer advocate training will be conducted over two consecutive weekends/Nov. 15-16 and Nov. 22-23 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This training will prepare volunteers to serve victims of rape, sexual assault and those at risk of abuse by providing support, responding to crisis calls, accompanying victims to hospitals, law enforcement agencies and court proceedings, as well as providing information and referrals.

Nationwide statistics show that one out of three women and one out of seven men will be assaulted in their lifetime.

The Monterey Rape Crisis Center, a United Way Agency, was established in 1974, as a response to the increasing number of sexual assaults on the Monterey Peninsula.

With today's tax reforms, your best source for borrowing money is right where you live.

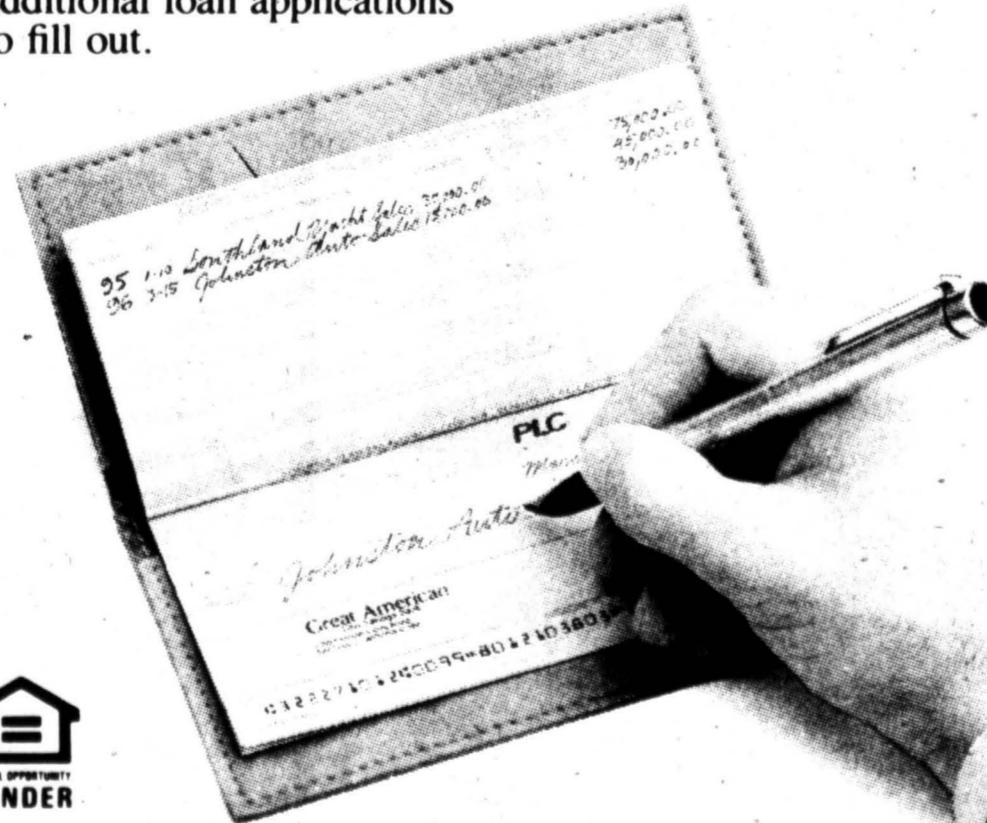

If you plan to borrow money, why not try getting it right at home. With our Preferred Line of Credit (PLC), you can borrow against the equity you've built in your house. And get a loan up to $100,000. Instantly. It's as easy as writing a check.

A tax advantage even after tax reform.

When the new tax laws take effect next year, many deductions for interest paid on consumer loans will no longer be allowed. However, Great American's PLC may offer an attractive alternative. In many cases, interest paid on a home equity credit line will still be deductible.

Money any time you want. For anything you want.

With our PLC, you simply write a check whenever you need money. For whatever you want. A home improvement. New car or boat. Vacation. Or investment opportunity. There's no need to visit the bank. No additional loan applications to fill out.

A rate lower than credit cards or consumer loans.

8.96%*
APR
Variable rate effective through 10/31/86.

A Great American PLC means you pay lower interest rates than is charged for most credit cards and consumer loans.

What's more, no interest is charged until you write your first PLC check. And your payments can be as low as interest-only.

For details on how to open your own PLC, contact your local Great American office. Or call our Financial Line at 1-800-423-BANK.

Special Offer: 50% off loan points!

Right now, we've reduced our normal PLC loan points from 1½ to just ¾ of a percentage point. Which could save you a substantial amount of money, depending on the amount of your credit line. But hurry. This special discount ends November 7, 1986.

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

Workshops are it

OK YOU water sleuths. I know you're out there! Come out with your hands up...asking questions!

I know you Pine Cone readers are concerned about water and water policy, so why don't I see more of you at the water management district's many public meetings? We hold numerous workshops on a variety of important topics that I know you care about. These include water demand projections, drought reserve, water conservation and how water savings should be reinvested into development, allocation issues, rationing plans and alternative water supply projects, among others.

These workshops are your chance to get in on the decision-making process and gain insight into why certain decisions are made. District staff or consultants typically make a presentation on the evening's topic, followed by public and board member questions. The workshop is purposely less formal than a regular board meeting to foster public participation. Your questions and comments are encouraged, as is your attendance!

Wanna know what you've been missing? I'll briefly fill you in on the results of the flurry of workshops we've had in the previous weeks, and provide the scoop on what's coming up.

Revised Demand Projections: Based on citizen comment, the board directed staff to revise projected water demand in the year 2020. Normal year estimates were increased to account for remodeling, intensification (more water being used in the same facility), changes in land use projections, water reserves, and the effect of conservation savings. A 10 percent increase in water demand was projected for dry years, with a corresponding 10 percent decrease for wet years. In order to choose the right water supply project, we must have a good handle on how much water we'll need.

Conservation Issues: The axiom "It pays to conserve" was demonstrated by district staff in a big way. We'll be much less vulnerable in a drought with an active conservation program on line, as there is much less stress on the water-bearing aquifers. The board agreed to shoot for a 15 percent water savings by the year 2020, equivalent to 3000 ac. ft. In order to reduce drought vulnerability, the board agreed to a 50 percent limit on reinvestment of conservation savings into new construction.

No Project Allocation: In order to determine how good a new water project is, one must know what the existing facilities can yield. Our computer whizzes needed to know the maximum water demand if no new project was built. For the purposes of modeling, the board agreed to stick with the existing 20,000 ac. ft. allocation. This means the maximum demand in a normal year would be 20,000 ac. ft. The dry year figure would be 22,000 ac. ft. (10 percent higher). If a project was built, these figures would be 22,675 ac. ft. and 24,943 ac. ft. for normal and dry years respectively.

Rationing Scheme: In another drought, how much are you going to get if a new project is built? Fifty percent more than you got before, if you're a typical family member. This decision is important, as we now know that any new project must be able to supply 18,600 ac. ft. of water if conditions like those in the year 1977 occur again.

As you can see from the above, many important decisions that could affect your lifestyle and your pocketbook are made at these workshops. Want to get in on the action? Come to our next meeting, 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 30 in the Seaside City Council Chambers. The second screening of alternative water supply projects will be presented. Don't miss it!

VENTANA WILDERNESS REPORT

BY GLENN R.
STEWART

The falling of summer

FALL CREEPS in as a gradual turning of leaf color among the black oaks, sycamores and madrone in the Ventana Wilderness and Monterey Peninsula. Our autumn is not marked by a sudden chilling that is experienced elsewhere, but instead a vacillating weather pattern that incorporates the more subtle signals of the season.

It is the sudden appearance of winter migrants that sets off the fall season. Like a secret whisper to the keen observer (the ferruginous hawks are here!) another summer is wrapped up and put away.

Our central coast is a dynamic area in the fall. Ocean swells change direction to sweep tons of sand off favorite beaches for the winter, only to return it in spring. The glow of the Indian Summer magnifies the seemingly early arrival of ferruginous hawks that hunt voles and gophers in the Moss Landing meadows after their long journey from the northern plains. Juvenile red-tailed hawks appear on every third utility pole in the agricultural areas to verify that while we are basking in the golden rays of an extended summer, a frosty cold autumn is getting underway with a vengeance in the higher latitudes.

The remarkable spell of fall in Big Sur was not lost on my friend, Richard Sloan, who has kindly offered to dedicate his next painting to Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary. We spent a glorious day and a half drinking in "El Pais Grande del Sur" (the big land to the south) from the beaches of Garrapata to the fabulous views off the top of the Coast Ridge Road.

Sloan is just back from the Peruvian Amazon where he spent a month photographing the richly colorful jungle from the bow of a dugout canoe. A world away from the dense opulence of the tropics, he was soon immersed in the scenery, committing much of it to film for reference in the studio. I stood back acting as a guide and quiet observer of the creative process in action. Dick was consumed by his work which took us from rocky beach to sea lion overlook to redwood canyon waterfall. It was a treat to be a part of the developing artwork and I'll be thrilled to see the finished product.

We stood on a ridge at an elevation that allowed Dick to capture that ephemeral line of dense fog and stunning sunshine that often washes in and out of the canyons like the ocean surf. My mind wandered as I studied the long-armed sycamores reaching out of the steep-sided arroyo. I wondered at the kind of a place California must have been when bald eagles nested atop a sycamore tree in Malibu Canyon, several decades ago.

Impressions of the central coast brewed in Sloan during the long trip back to his studio near Phoenix, Ariz. An image of a painting began to emerge. Commemorating the bald eagle's return to our coast, he has begun sketches of our national symbol leaving a rocky perch above the surf. We will produce a limited edition print of the painting that will eventually evolve from the sketches he is doing now. Proceeds from the sale of prints will make a hearty contribution to next year's bald eagle restoration budget.

A black phoebe has regained its self-appointed sentinel's perch outside the window to renew an insect control mission that it's been absent from the past few months. The song of a titmouse is another signal of the changing season.

At the sanctuary we work like a pack of squirrels to guard our little access road against the hundred or more inches of rain that will fall before spring. Planning for next year is also time-consuming.

We are considering the enlargement of our existing orphaned raptor program into an effort that would serve many species of wildlife that presently enjoy only minimal preparation for release to the wild. Coyotes and mountain lions are two animals that are difficult to handle in captivity and require a really comprehensive effort — similar to that involved in rearing of the winged predators, raptors. With a proper level of support, we'll develop methods at our remote sanctuary to serve the needs of these creatures.

Orphaned animals are the product of human intrusions that disturb nest or burrow sites before young are fully mobile. Our efforts, like those we're engaged in on behalf of endangered species, are geared toward reversing those negative human impacts. The techniques we use to simulate parental care and prevent human association with the youngsters are interesting and include opportunities for volunteer involvement. I'll provide a detailed description of this work and photos in a later column. For now, the harvest moon is on the rise...

(Editor's Note: The Ventana Wilderness Report, written by Glenn R. Stewart, executive director of the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary, will appear in The Pine Cone every fourth Thursday of the month. For more information or for comments or questions, contact the Sanctuary at 429-2466 or PO Box 894, Carmel Valley CA 93924.)

CARMEL VOICE

By Sam Salerno

Island hopping

DICK McCLEAN is making quite a name for himself on the Hawaiian Islands. Dick, a former touring pro from Carmel recently won the Aloha Section PGA Murray Rarick Memorial Match Play Championship at Makaha Resort and Country Club on Oahu and also won the section's Stroke-Play Championship at Navy-Marine Golf Course earlier this year. The last player to pull this double was Ron Castillo Sr. in 1976. McClean works for Mark Rolfing as tournament director for the Isuzu Kapalua International Championship of Golf held on Maui. Some of the local golfers will be vacationing and working the tournament this year at Kapalua including Dick Reed, Mike Ayala, and Bobby Moffatt, according to the word I received from Eddie "Juice" Johnson, who'll go over to Maui a week later to check on his radio station there. "Juice" was former owner of KLRB in Carmel.

OFF TO SALT LAKE CITY

The on again, off again move of Mark Erickson, anchorperson at KMST television is on again! Mark informed me a couple of days ago that "he is history" at KMST and is making the move to Salt Lake City with a three-year contract and more money, and moving to a larger TV market. Mark hopes to reside in the "Carmel" of that area, Park City, where skiing and golfing are the thing! We'll miss Mark who has done a good reporting job for my old alma mater, KMST. But as is usual, this area is just a proving ground for broadcasters and telecasters as they move upward in their given profession. Mark has the looks and the smarts to go to the big time. Best to you, Mark!

YARD SALE FIND

You never know what you're going to uncover at a garage or yard sale. Saw this sign near my home about said garage sale, stopped by and picked up a copy of The Buddy Holly Story album on Coral Records. This collector's item is worth more than the price I paid for it and it was in playable condition with few scratches, attesting to the care it was given. Also picked up a copy of Taste of Brass with Billy May, Pete Rugolo and Jerry Fielding and The In Crowd with The Ramsey Lewis Trio. So it might behoove you to stop by when you see a yard sale sign or garage sale. Never know what little "goodie" you are going to find.

ADIOS TO A COUPLE OF GOLFERS

Ted Watson (no relation to Tom), who worked at Rancho Canada in the pro shop, has parted company with that organization to work as food and beverage manager at the Casa Munras. Professional golf jobs are as short-lived as broadcasting jobs and car sales jobs...workers always looking for greener pastures and they're on the move constantly. While we're on that subject, we hear that Art Williams is "persona non grata" at Monterey Peninsula Country Club, having been given his walking papers. Now I think it's time for the board members to reinstate John Geersten Jr. who spent over 20 years of his life catering to the whims of the members. John is one of the best teachers around and deserves to return to his post. I just loathe the fact that "fly by nighters" come to town and impress the locals into hiring them and then their term is brief and in the interim they stir up a hornet's nest and muddy the water, so to speak. Let's play ball with the regulars who give of their time and talent and not newcomers with less talent. Enough preaching!

CASTLES IN THE SAND

Don't know whether you made the scene at Carmel's sand castle extravaganza, but if you didn't you missed a great event. There were more than 200 contestants in this year's 24th annual Great Sand Castle Contest, sponsored by the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the city. The official theme this year was "Build Your Dream" and it's only natural that the grand sand winner was called "Sleeping Beauty, Dreaming of Camelot," constructed by the Palo Alto architectural firm of Moyer Associates. They received the top award for its "classic display of craftsmanship and bulk," according to the judges. Other awards went to Kaye Chandler's Ferrari in sand entitled "Daddy's Toy" and a "Dream of World Peace" by the group from the Weir Chiropractic Center of Monterey. Their sand edifice was a neatly crafted and detailed handshake. The sand creation that impressed this reporter was Kyong Turner's "Buddha," which showed a great deal of artistry and creativity. If you missed it this year, be certain to mark it on your calendar for next year.

Bessie L. Hitchcock

Funeral services took place Sept. 22 at the Paul Mortuary Chapel for Bessie L. Hitchcock of Pebble Beach, who died Sept. 19 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 76.

Born Oct. 31, 1909 in Philadelphia, she was a graduate of the Philadelphia School of the Bible.

She and her husband, the Rev. Lon Hitchcock, were married in 1935 and six months later went to Peru as missionaries to the Quechua Indians there. At the time, they were the only Protestant missionaries in that region of the Andes Mountains.

The couple returned to the United States nearly nine years later and first came to the peninsula when Rev. Hitchcock was pastor at the Mayflower Congregational Church from 1951 to 1954. They also served in pastorates in South Carolina and in Redwood City, returning to the peninsula and the Mayflower church in 1975.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by her son, Ted of Lafayette; two sisters, Marjorie Light of Havertown, Pa., and Jean Morrow of Broomall, Pa., and five grandchildren.

Ed and Mary Mueller of Campbellsport, Wisconsin, ought to know the secret of a long, happy marriage. When they celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary last year, Ed, 97, said, "The time has gone in no time at all." Mary, 91, offered this advice to other couples: "Keep believing in each other." The Muellers were married in 1915 and lived in their 107-year-old farmhouse all the while. Their family consisted of eight children, 45 grandchildren, 85 great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

CACHAGUA RESIDENT Diane Freitas turned out for the Oct. 15 grape picking at Galante Vineyards. Freitas donated her paycheck to a Cachagua community fund that is earmarked to benefit a park and baseball diamond. (Holly McFarland photo).

THE FIRST GRAPE harvest at Galante Vineyards in Cachagua brought a crew of neighbors to help gather the Cabernet Sauvignon. The 58-acre vineyard is bordered by thousands of color-coordinated rose bushes. (Holly McFarland photo).

First grape picking draws harvest of helpers

By ANNE PAPINEAU

VOLUNTEERS ENCOUNTERED a heady combination during the first harvest ever at Galante Vineyards. On 58 acres in Cachagua, grapevines, themselves a picture of bounty, stood bordered by an emblem of beauty: thousands of roses in full bloom.

This teaming was a visual pun dreamt up by Clement Galante, who operates the vineyard with his wife, Jane, and their sons, Edward and John.

Red roses heralded the cabernet sauvignon vintage destined to be consumed with beef, lamb and veal. White blooms punctuated the high tech rows of chenin blanc and sauvignon blanc grapes. And yellows bordered the chardonnay.

"We take care of the roses with the same dedication we care for the vineyard," exclaimed Clement Galante, a native of Rhodes who speaks 10 languages. "Many vineyards suffer mildew or aphids. We take care here. It's a work of love and dedication."

Dedication drew residents from the surrounding hills to assist during the Wednesday, Oct. 15 grape picking. In September the Galantes distributed letters inviting their Cachagua neighbors to help with the first harvest. Pickers, working as independent contractors, were paid $10 per hour. If they wished, they could endorse their checks over to a Cachagua community project fund. The Galantes said they will donate a matching amount to the fund.

"I'm here so the kids of Cachagua can get a park and baseball diamond," said Diane Freitas. Her sentiments were echoed by Deloris Jeffries and nearly two dozen other Cachagua residents who turned out for the harvest/fundraiser.

Their forces were augmented by the regular vineyard employees.

"We've been checking the grapes every day for the last three weeks. We're going to try to pick 10 tons — that should be pretty easy," noted Vineyard Manager Richard Camera. The Galante grapes were destined for wineries in Salinas and Gilroy, where a "custom crush" would determine their oenophilic worth.

Camera noted that "the first year is not as good as it will get."

"The soil here is real nice — there are hardly any rocks," added Camera, a veteran of the Renaissance Winery in the foothills of Yuba County. "When vines grow very vigorously they tend to produce grapes that are not quite as good as vines that are more stressed. The biggest challenge is to learn what that means for this location."

The Galantes are new to the wine business but not to the Monterey Peninsula. Jane Galante's grandfather, J. Frank Devendorf, co-founded Carmel-by-the-Sea with Frank Powers. The two men were partners in the Carmel Development Co. In 1916 Devendorf founded and built the Highlands Inn.

A concert pianist and musicologist, Jane taught music at Mills College and UC Berkeley. The family's philanthropic activities are many. Among the Galante-supported projects are the Morrison Chamber Music Series Trusts at San Francisco State University, and the 140-acre Lillian Devendorf Hohfeld Nature Preserve at Elkhorn Slough, named for Jane Galante's mother, now 97.

The Galantes purchased their 700-plus acre ranch in Cachagua in 1969, as "a gift to our children."

"This part of the world was never Spanish," Jane Galante explained from the kitchen of the ranch house. "It was Indian until the white man came. The first road the white settlers built came over those hills. And there's a flat area where the first settler built his cabin and put in some almond trees. We call it 'Almond Flat.'"

According to accounts given to the Galantes by long-time Cachagua residents, the original owner of the property, Mr.

Girard, planted the first grapes in Cachagua at Almond Flat.

The techniques employed at Galante Vineyards to coax the vines are generations removed from that first grower's efforts.

"Mr. Galante has spared no trouble and expense to do everything properly" observed the vineyard manager. Galante estimated that the vineyard required "a $20,000 per acre investment before anything was planted."

Preparation included installation of 17,500 linear feet of 10-foot fencing to keep out predators, removal of trees and boulders and fumigation of the soil. A drip irrigation system invented in Israel makes use of water derived from both the Carmel River and seven wells on the property. A state-of-the-art sprinkler frost protection system is put into use in the spring.

it not to affect you. Here we don't have that problem."

Champion colties herd sheep during weekend trials

THE PEBBLE Beach International Sheepdog Trial, a benefit for the The Family Farm Project and the Pebble Beach Foundation, will take place Sunday, Oct. 26 at Collins Polo Field in Pebble Beach.

The trial, to be presented for the first time this year at Pebble Beach, is a traditional British sport which demonstrates the herding skills of working border collies. North America's top 12 border collies will compete during the trial, which continues until 4:30 p.m. The 12 finalists will be selected from a field of more than 60 dogs at pretrials conducted Friday and Saturday in Carmel Valley.

Judging will be done by John Bathgate, sheepdog trialsman from Dawyck, Peebles, in the Scottish Borders. This year he placed third in the Scottish National, fourth in the qualifying trial for the international in Wales and fourth in the Supreme Championship of Great Britain and Ireland.

The Family Farm Project is a non-profit, tax-exempt organization which was created to establish an educational facility, information resources and a showcase dealing with agricultural and environmental topics.

The project operates a traveling demonstration, which takes sheep, sheepdogs, dairy and beef cattle, swine, horses and poultry to Monterey County schools. It provides elementary students with the opportunity to see and touch animals found on a farm. This demonstration, provided free to schools, acts as a springboard for classroom discussion on such topics as zoology, botany, the food chain, soil science, ecology, and how humans interact with the environment.

Future plans of Family Farm Project include establishing a visiting farm in Monterey County, where the public and visit and experience life on a small family farm.

The trials will begin at 9:45 a.m. Sunday. General admission tickets are $5. Children under 12 will be admitted free. The Pebble Beach gate fee will be waived for persons attending the trials.

Tickets can be purchased at the gate or in advance from Del Monte Pets, The Total Dog, the Lodge at Pebble Beach, Salinas Feed and Supply, Northridge Pet Center, Stone's Pet Shop and the Golden Dolphin.

For reservations or information, call 625-1758.

CHAMPION BORDER colties will compete at sheep herding during the first Pebble Beach International Sheepdog Trial, arriving Sunday, Oct. 26 at Collins Polo Field, Pebble Beach. Judge will be John Bathgate, sheepdog trialsman from Scotland.

Ski film journeys 'On the Edge'

WARREN MILLER'S Beyond The Edge, an adventure film about the thrill of skiing plays Tues., Oct. 28, at Salinas High Auditorium and Wed., Oct. 29, at Sunset Center, Carmel.

Beyond The Edge, the 37th feature film by sports filmmaker Warren Miller, explores the edge of a skier's reality—the edge where the instinct for self-preservation is balanced against the urge to challenge one's limits "to risk it all by climbing a little higher, skiing just a little farther . . ."

Featured in Beyond The Edge are some of the world's most fearless and famous skiers who also jump from hot air balloons, off 100 foot-high cliffs and race to break speed records. Dr. Ruth Westheimer shows off her skills on the slopes, as she explains the parallels between good skiing and good sex. Screeing (running down steep mountain slopes without skis or snow), acrobatics, mogul slalom races, and setting world speed records for riding on the roof of a car on skis, are just a few of the daredevil antics caught by Warren Miller's cameras.

Dan Fogelberg wrote and performed the title song for "Beyond The Edge," which is written, produced, directed, and narrated by Warren Miller. Grammy Award-winner Brooks Arthur supervised the musical score.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under. Tickets are available at Get Hot Ski and Sports in Salinas, Sunshine Freestyle Sports in Monterey, or at the door. Show time is 8 p.m.

Plant vessels sought for project

Members of Peninsula Beautiful will establish a collection point for reusable flower pots, flats and various containers on Saturday, Oct. 25, at the parking lot of the YWCA at the corner of Franklin Street and Camino El Estero.

Between 9 and noon persons can drop off those containers.

The volunteers of Peninsula Beautiful are dedicated to beautifying the peninsula any way they can. They know the empty pots rolling around in the back yards of the peninsula can be put to good use by the Ornamental Horticulture Program at the Correctional Training Facility.

Trainees at the facility engaged in studying horticultural trades often propagate and grow ornamental plants for use by publicly supported agencies, including peninsula municipalities. Budgets are quite limited and nursery containers are always in short supply.

MEXICAN FOR 24 YEARS

The Mexican Years in Monterey began in 1822 and lasted for 24 years.

According to John Kern, vocational instructor at Soledad, plastic and clay pots are preferred for security reasons. Donated containers will eventually return to the community filled with plants ear-marked for community beautification projects.

For example, Shoreline Park near Fisherman's Wharf will be planted in November with about 1,000 "Magic Carpet Ice Plants" provided by the Correctional Training Facility.

Peninsula Beautiful is a non-profit group which sponsors volunteer beautification efforts by community groups of all kinds. "Volunteer Gardeners," a program directed by Sandra Forman for the City of Monterey, meets every Tuesday morning at El Estero Park. Other monthly projects around the city have included students from the Defense Language Institute and Monterey Peninsula College, professional gardeners, retirees, housewives, Girl Scouts, etc. Peninsula Beautiful also plans an expanded lecture series on landscape gardening this Winter/Spring.

For more information on the plastic pot drive call John Kern at 375-9492 or Sandra Forman at 372-5429. Or just drop off your donations Saturday morning, Oct. 25 and help Peninsula Beautiful keep the peninsula beautiful.

Peace marchers schedule stops at Fort Ord, Monterey

The Monterey Bay Pledge of Resistance will sponsor a second Monterey Bay Peace March from Friday through Sunday, Oct. 24-26. The 52-mile march, like the march exactly one year before, is scheduled to start in Santa Cruz and travel via Watsonville and Fort Ord to a concluding rally in Monterey. It is designed to protest U.S. policy in Central America.

The Pledge of Resistance is "a national network of religious and peace groups who have pledged to resist U.S. intervention in Central America by civil disobedience or legal protest," according to a spokesman.

The purpose of the march and rally, planners indicated, is "to demonstrate continuing opposition to U.S. policy following the increase in Congressional aid to the Contras, to reemphasize the illegal posture of our government in defiance of the World Court decision of June, to express solidarity with the Veterans' Fast for Peace in Washington, D.C., and to raise public awareness of recent war games preparing Fort Ord's light infantry division for rapid intervention in Central America."

The planners announced that the Sunday, Oct. 26 rally in Monterey will feature Col. John Stockwell, former marine, member of the National Security Council and director of the CIA-sponsored war in Angola in 1975, author of In Search of Enemies, and the highest ranking CIA officer ever to declare opposition to U.S. policies. Stockwell recently returned from a fact-finding trip to Honduras and Nicaragua.

Also flying into Monterey for the rally will be Sister Darlene Nicgorski, of the School Sisters of St. Francis, a longtime worker with Central American refugees and one of the most outspoken defendants in the Sanctuary trial in Arizona. Music and refreshments also will be included in the rally.

The peace march has been endorsed by more than 35 religious, peace and labor groups, including the Santa Cruz County Nuclear Weapons Freeze, Central Coast Sanctuary, Bill Motto Post of the VFW, Coalition for Nicaragua, Resource Center for Nonviolence, Peoples Democratic Club, American Civil Liberties Union (Santa Cruz Chapter), Santa Cruz County Central Labor Council, Computer Professionals for Social Responsibility, Latin American Solidarity Committee, Central Coast Greens, Unitarian Fellowship Social Action Committee, Witness for Peace, Santa Cruz Action Network, Pajaro Valley Religious Committee on Peacemaking, Democratic Central Committee, Democratic Women's Club of Santa Cruz, Monterey County Sanctuary, Sophia Interfaith Center for Peace and Social Justice of Carmel, Salvadoran Medical Relief Fund.

Further information can be obtained by calling 649-8995 in Monterey, 458-0303 in Santa Cruz or 728-2076 in Watsonville.

Dynamism eludes Cascade Soloists

A POPULAR GROUP from last season, the Cascade Soloists, returned to Sunset Theater on Oct. 15 in a concert made up of a trio of trios.

Brahms wrote several works which feature the clarinet, due to his friendship with a virtuoso player on the instrument. The A minor Trio, Op. 114, for clarinet, cello and piano, is probably the most somber of these works. Partly for that reason, it was a difficult opening work for the audience, and evidently for the players as well. Although well-played all around, only clarinetist David Shifrin seemed totally involved. One had the distinct feeling it would have been much better played at a later spot on the program.

However, none of the three trios was a really good curtain-raiser, so they (and us) had to jump right in. The Brahms was followed by Contrasts, of Bartok, one of his last chamber works (1938), coming between the Fifth and Sixth Quartets. Commissioned by Benny Goodman and Josef Szigeti, Bartok himself being the original pianist, the title refers to more than one kind of contrast. Besides the obvious contrast among the three movements, Bartok exploited the contrasting timbres, attacks and techniques of the three instruments. Most of his chamber music is for instruments that blend, and there is little wind music at all, so this is an important work for studying Bartok.

It received an excellent reading from the Cascade Soloists, as they brought to it not only their accustomed clarity, but an intensity that was missing the rest of the evening. The piece was rhythmic, and lyrical or biting as required.

Schubert's popular B flat major Trio, Op. 99, was the sole work on the second half of the program, but the performance was disappointingly academic. Everything was correct, technically, but it was simply unmotivated. Events occurred because they were there on the page, not from any musical imperative. The first movement was episodic and never really arrived at a dramatic point; the second movement was somnambulistic. Only in the Scherzo was there a real show of life, but it just wasn't enough.

The balance was out of whack all evening. The violinist, clarinetist and cellist were placed on the stage extenders, and the piano and the shell were brought far forward. Nevertheless, the piano was dominant continuously. Instead of projecting outward, the tone of other instruments seemed to head straight for the ceiling and never come back down.

Ik-Hwan Bae, the violinist, has a small tone anyway, and is not an aggressive player, so he almost got lost. Warren Lash, cello, basically a lyrical player, was more audible than the violinist, but the sound still seemed reticent. The pianist, David Golub, is an aggressive player, at his best in the Bartok and Brahms, but overpowering his colleagues.

David Shifrin demonstrated once again his magic with the clarinet. His love affair with his instrument is evident in every phrase.

This is a good group of musicians. Whatever was lacking in last week's concert simply demonstrates how tricky the art of chamber music truly is.

Bishop was one of the greatest flying aces of World War I. By the age of 23 he had shot down 72 enemy aircraft (eight fewer than Richthofen and almost 50 more than Rickenbacker). Yet he remains virtually unknown.

Bishop was awarded the highest honors the British, French and Canadian governments could bestow, yet he was also considered to be highly unorthodox and almost dangerously insubordinate.

George Berry portrays Billy and local composer Stephen Tosh portrays the Piano Player.

Final performances of Billy Bishop Goes to War will be staged at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 24-26, in the Studio Theatre of The Western Stage. Unicorn Theatre Presents seeks essays on holiday memories

Unicorn Theatre Presents is currently soliciting short stories and poems for its original Christmas production, "A Seed Beneath the Snow: Christmas Past, Present and Future". The deadline for submission of material is Nov. 1. Premiere performances will be given at Cherry Hall in Carmel beginning Dec. 12.

Preference will be shown for material which explores personal responses to the holiday season. Material submitted need not be written specifically for this production — previously written material that has lain dormant should be pulled out of hiding, touched up and submitted.

The anticipated length of the show is one hour and 15 minutes; no piece should last longer than 10 minutes.

The show will be directed by Chuck Thurman and performed readers' theater-style with limited interaction between the performers. The six performers' age range will be between 12 and 90 years with the balance between men and women to be determined by the material chosen.

Those wishing to contribute material should mail their pieces to Unicorn Theatre Presents, care of Chuck Thurman, 906 Franklin, Monterey, CA 93940 or call Carey Crockett at 659-5629.

All writers whose work is chosen will be notified after Nov. 1. Writers wishing to have their material returned should enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Student, military and senior citizen rates are available Sundays. Tickets are $26.50 for dinner and show, exclusive of tax and gratuity. Tickets: 624-1661.

PHILIP CLARKSON is Morell, the liberal cleric, and Norman Stottmeister portrays the young poet, Marchbanks, in the Staff Players Repertory Company staging of Candida. The George Bernard Shaw drama continues through Nov. 22 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Carmel.

Answer to last week's puzzle

THEATER REVIEW

BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

Staff Players stage Shaw revival

A PLAY THAT will not last 40 years and be all the better for it," declared Bernard Shaw of Candida in 1936, "is not worth writing." Almost 90 now, Shaw's Candida seems durable enough, and the Staff Players' revival, directed by Marcia Gambrell Hovick, has many good things going for it, despite some weak spots. In an unfashionable suburb of London, 40-year-old Reverend James Morell is a convincing orator whose energetic speeches convert large numbers of listeners to his progressive (which is to say, socialist) politics. But the Morell we meet in Candida is an all family man, smug in his domestic happiness and bedazzled by his pretty wife.

The play constitutes an eventful day in Morell's life. The action takes place in a single setting, a sitting room that Morell also uses as an office. Peopling this little world are a spinsterish, working class typist (delightfully created by Patricia Cullen), a stuffy young curate (Donald Reynolds as Lexy Mill) and Morell's rascally father-in-law (Alan Smith as Mr. Burgess). In Act 1, Morell's interactions with these characters give him plenty of scope to rhapsodize about his absent wife and to demonstrate his own character.

Morell (Philip Clarkson) is one of those pleasant people whom good fortune and success have made generous. Morell is so generous that he wraps up his curate in his own muffler, lest the young man catch a chill while on rounds. And he has taken into his household a homeless young nobleman, Eugene Marchbanks (Norman Stottmeister), a neurotically shy fledgling poet who worships Morell's wife.

Eventually, Morell and Eugene square off in a battle of words to prove which of the two is most worthy of Candida. This being a Shaw play, however, it's not that simple. Candida herself squares off with both of them in an unusually extended reversal scene.

AS SCRIPTED, Morell is a robust, lively man in his prime. This production's Morell is miscast. Clarkson is much too old for the role and has changed the character, to the plot's disadvantage. His Morell is stodgier and less virile than Shaw meant him to be, and the visible age gap between him and his thirtyish wife changes the play's dynamic.

We are meant to see a cemented couple of balanced strength, devotion, and vigor confronting a very young man's intense infatuation for the lady. Clarkson's age and portrayal work against this, and his characterization weakens the play's argument.

The other lead roles fare rather better. Manuela Shaw's Candida Morell makes a glorious first entrance, radiant in the certain knowledge that her husband adores her, and goes on to handle one of Shaw's more delightful women's roles effortlessly, pampering, scolding, and breathing fire by turns.

As Eugene, Norman Stottmeister delineates the "wretched little nervous disease," as Eugene refers to himself, with fine attention to detail. He is neurotically furtive casting a secretly typed poem into the fire, wonderfully naive probing the typist's inmost secrets ("I thought clever people always had love affairs!"), and generally entertaining effortlessly following every twist and turn of this odd little character.

Alan Smith's Mr. Burgess is equally diverting, adding a good-humoredly coarse-grained dimension to this otherwise very proper setting, pronouncing his hatches persistently, and lording it over the typist to fine comic effect.

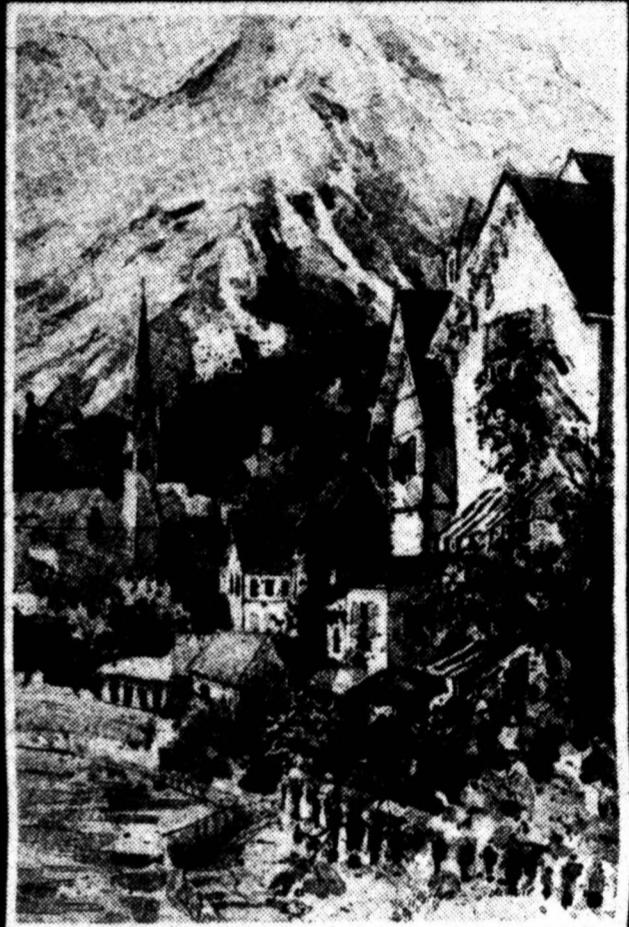

Marcia Hovick's direction is crisp and brisk, and the comfortable, realistic set, designed by Gwyneth Hovick and Stottmeister, is spacious and interestingly detailed.

With Candida, Shaw offers us the most prosaic situation imaginable and invests it with so much wit and depth that the play is a delight. To say more of the plot seems out of place, just in case you've never seen it.

Whether you have seen Candida before or not, look in on this production. Ninety years past the speaking, Shaw still has fresh things to say on the subject of monogamy, and the message is delivered in Shaw's characteristically diverting manner.

The Staff Players have changed their Sunday playing time to a 2:30 p.m. matinee; evening performances take place at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

Museum previews tree decorations

AN EXHIBITION of folk art by the Cuna Indians of Panama and the annual display of the Masters Tree are now featured at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

A colorful folk art exhibition, produced by the Cuna Indians who live off the coast of Panama consists of 75 items of textiles, jewelry and domestic implements.

The Cuna Indians belong to one of the rare cultures of the world, where the pictorial art of a society is dominated by its women. The mainstay of the exhibit is a textile called a mola, which is both a blouse and a work of art. In the hands of the Cuna women, the blouse becomes the stage for an infinite variety of pictures — flowers, animals, political and social events, advertising, and even comic books — all showing the fresh wit and flawless stitchery of the Cuna women.

The Cuna Indians live on the San Blas

Islands, a narrow strip of land along the eastern coast of Panama. They're thought to be descendants of the pre-Columbian tribes of Carib Indians.

The textiles and artifacts on display are all on loan from the private collection of William Siegal, now a resident of Bolivia. The Cuna Indian exhibit will be on display at the museum through Dec. 31.

The holiday spirit is already under way at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. The annual Masters' Tree display has been installed, and it's ready to serve as an inspiration for home holiday decor.

The display consists of miniature works of art created by local artists.

The show will be moved in mid-November to the Monterey Fairgrounds. The miniatures will be raffled off at the conclusion of the festival, and the proceeds will benefit the museum.

For more information contact the museum at 372-5477.

Alice Jean Small will demonstrate collage

Alice Jean Small will demonstrate how she makes her clown collages at the next Central Coast Art Association meeting, 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 27 at Sunset Center, Carmel.

Small's interest in painting and sculpting clowns and circus performers began when she served as director of crafts and ceramics at the University of Tampa, Florida. Weekends she sketched at the Ringling Brothers Winter Quarters in nearby Sarasota, and she exhibited in the circus museum there.

Later as arts and crafts director in Camp Zama, Far East, she sketched the clowns and circus in Asia, and wrote articles and books about clowns. She followed the circuses in Europe, too, and she states, "I love to convey, through the theme of clowns and circus, the idea of celebration, joyousness and laughter."

The United States Information Service sponsored her paintings throughout the Republic of Mexico, and the American Cultural Center in Tokyo presented 50 of her works. The United States Army sponsored her work in Europe.

Husband, wife glass art shown

William and Katherine Bernstein, glass artists, will attend a reception to open an exhibit of their work in Carmel.

The reception is set 3 to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 25 at Walter/White Fine Arts, southwest corner of Seventh and San Carlos. The show continues through Nov. 30.

Katherine's work is derived from images around her including friends and family. First she makes several drawings from life. From the drawings she sculpts a negative clay mold. The glass sculpture is then formed by slumping a glass ingot in the mold. The cool brilliance of the glass captures the warmth of the sculptural forms.

William applies colored canes of glass to the surface to the surfaces of his vessels using a torch. The figurative motifs that he creates are reminiscent of the "Fauvist" painters such as Matisse.

Bernstein's figurative technique is extremely difficult; the critical nature of high temperatures, varying melting points and the unreversibility of "drawing" on glass are ever-present factors during the glass-blowing process.

Also included in the show will be a collection of William Bernstein's recent paintings. The oil on canvas paintings are also figurative works reminiscent of the characters found in his glass.

The inclusion of the paintings with the glass give a multi-media cohesion to the show.

WILLIAM BERNSTEIN created Face, a nine-inch-tall blown glass design. His glass art will be featured at the Walter/White galleries in Carmel.

A Special Invitation...

Simic Galleries is hosting a French/American exhibit commemorating the official inauguration of the Statue of Liberty which took place on October 28, 1886. Present will be members of the French Government, The Directors of the French Trade and Tourist Delegation, The Mayor of Colmar, France, and the Curator of the Bartholdi Museum in Colmar.

The evening will focus on the recent release of a bronze limited edition of "Liberty Enlightening The World" — the final lay model for the 151 ft. Statue Of Liberty created by Auguste Bartholdi.

Wednesday, October 29th, will see the premiere unveiling of "Liberty Enlightening The World" and many American and European dignitaries are expected to attend. A presentation to the French Government will take place in the course of the evening with special attention to the significance of the Statue Of Liberty "Yesterday and Today." Ruth Bernhard will autograph new book of photos

PHOTOGRAPHY WEST Gallery is hosting a champagne reception for Ruth Bernhard, who will be signing her recently published book, The Eternal Body, 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 25.

Bernhard, now 80, has been a prominent figure in West Coast photography for more than 30 years, and is often mentioned along with Edward Weston in reference to her contribution to the photography of the figure.

Her first major monograph, The Eternal Body, traces the development of her work with the nude, from the 1930's onwards. Great care has been given to the faithfulness of the reproductions, using state-of-the-art laser-scanned duotones. An essay in the book by Margaretta Mitchell sheds light on Bernhard's place in photographic and art history. Bernhard typically brings a sense of classical form and a feeling for dance, with an extraordinary sensitivity to lighting, to her studies of the female figure.

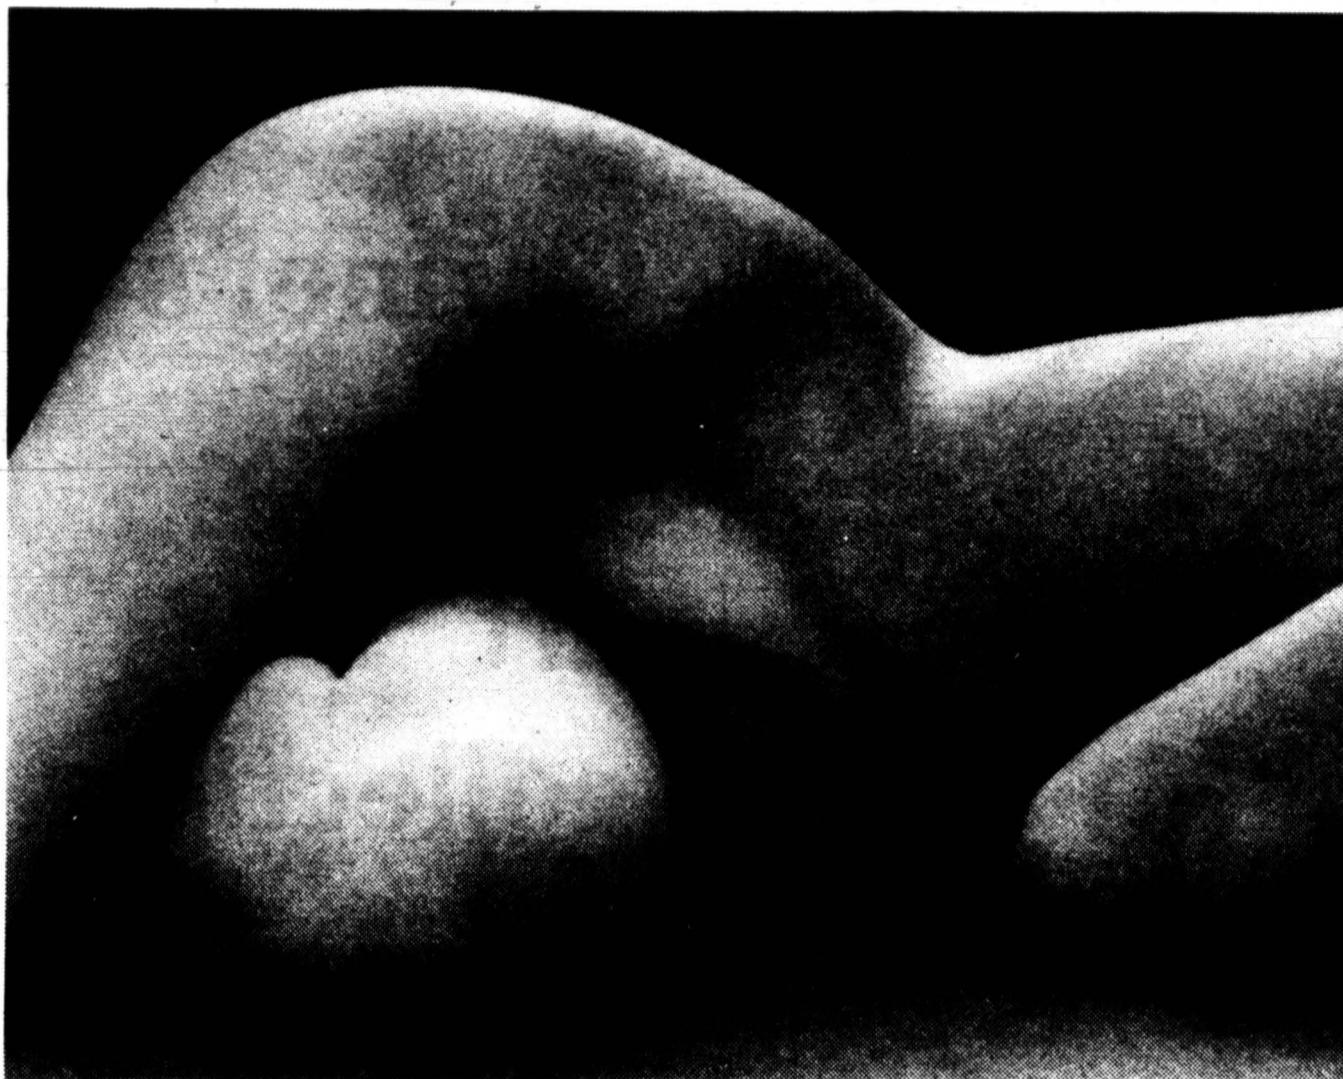

The daughter of an influential designer, Bernhard originally studied music at the Berlin Academy of Art. She later moved to New York City where she pursued her aptitude for photography and began a career photographing for museums, and architectural and fashion clients. Meeting Edward Weston in Los Angeles caused Bernhard to change artistic direction, being impressed by Weston's example as a dedicated artist with the camera.

Bernhard moved to Los Angeles, becoming part of the musical and artistic world there, and eventually, in the 1950's, came north to San Francisco where she is today. Her work has been exhibited internationally, and is represented in numerous photographic collections.

In addition to the display on view for this reception, other photographs by Bernhard may be seen regularly at Photography West. Interested persons may also wish to view more of her work at a current show at the Museum of Modern Art in San Francisco, which runs through Nov. 2. Photography West is on Dolores Street near Ocean Avenue in Carmel.

Further information can be obtained by calling 625-1587.

HIPS — HORIZONTAL, a 1975 image by Ruth Bernhard, is among her works featured at Photography West on Dolores Street in Carmel. On Saturday, Oct. 25, Bernhard will sign her recently published book, The Eternal Body.

Galante Vineyards celebrate first harvest

Camera, "We avail ourselves of all the production techniques people are aware of. But not everything will be computerized as some vineyards do — a computer switching on the water system for example. We try to keep a hands-on attitude."

The Galante's other grape-producing neighbors in Cachagua are Durney Vineyards, who pioneered the area with a 1968 planting, and Talbott Vineyards, which began planting in spring 1983.

Planting began three years ago at Galante Vineyard. Plans call for devoting an additional 40 to 50 acres to vineyards.

"Our love is to come here. We will give ourselves, two, three, four years to produce good quality grapes. We are in quest of quality, not quantity. We want to be welcome in the community," Clement Galante said. "You will not see here a swimming pool, a tennis court. Our dedication is for the fields, not the amenities of life."

Racewalkers converge for race in Marina

The sixth annual 10-kilometer Mega Walk organized by the Monterey Walk Walk Club begins 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 25 at Laguna Grande Park.

The 10-kilometer race walk is open to everyone. Walkers will be entered in the following age divisions: 13 and under, 14-19, 20-24, 25-29, 30-34, 40-44, 45-49, 50-54, 55-59, 60-64, 65-69 and 70 and over.

The course consists of seven and three-eighths laps around the Laguna Grande Park on Canyon Del Rey between Del Monte and Fremont, Seaside.

A reception and awards ceremony will follow the race at the picnic center of Laguna Grande Park.

Entry fee is $5 on race day, $4 if received by Friday, Oct. 24. The race is co-sponsored by the Monterey YMCA and the Monterey Kiwanis.

Carmel Votes to Incorporate 113 For 86 Against

"The best little city in California" is what a majority of the voters of Carmel determined upon at last Thursday's incorporation election.

The "City of Carmel-by-the-Sea" will at once begin its forward march. With the coming of independent municipal existence, which should be inaugurated about January 1, many projects for building and improvements, which had been held in abeyance, pending the result of the election, will be pushed forward to completion.

Under the old order of things Carmel was in a position where little of the greatest good to the greatest number could be accomplished. We have passed that period.

Now begins the labor of construction and improvement, not only in municipal projects, but with private enterprise as well.

The splendid Board of City Trustees will have many perplexing problems to meet and solve, and it will be the part of the public to assist them in every way. With such a board the people are assured of economy and efficiency in every matter undertaken. But give them time.

Two hundred and ten votes were cast, being about thirty short of the total number eligible to take part in the election. Incorporation won by a majority of 27.

J. E. Nichols, who entered the contest for City Clerk two days before election, surprised everyone by winning.

L. S. Slevin will be City Treasurer.

William M. Chase, Distinguished Artist, Crosses Over

William M. Chase, master artist, is dead. He passed away at his New York City home, on the afternoon of October 25. He was 68 years of age.

Up to 1914 it had been Mr. Chase's custom to conduct every summer somewhere away from home, generally in Europe, classes in painting. But in that year, through the efforts of the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts and Mrs. Jennie V. Cannon, he decided to establish his summer school here.

As a result, Carmel, prior to that time, known only locally as a gathering place of artists and students, immediately came to the front as an art center, and through the efforts of C. P. Townsley, Carmel's place has been maintained.

For many years Chase was a familiar and distinguished figure in New York art life. In the public eye he was the most representative of the American painters of his generation who had elected to live and work in the United States.

His paintings are to be found in almost every gallery of importance in the country. He was best known as a portrait painter, but his fame in that direction was rivaled by his reputation as a painter of fish.

Mr. Chase's distinguished appearance and eccentric manner will be recalled by local residents.
